City Curbs Water in Bill Drive

Flow Is Cut To Over 400 Tenants

In an unprecedented drive to compel payment of $2,000,000 in unpaid bills, the water department today opened a city-wide move to "reduce the flow of water in homes owned by delinquents to an absolute minimum necessary for sanitary and health requirements."

About 400 tenants in East Boston and Charlestown, Wards 1 and 2, were the first to be affected. Most of them have large families.

According to city officials, 13,000 property owners have been delinquent in paying their water bills. It was also pointed out that the water income division of the public works department has not been self-supporting for the past seven years.

Richard Whitcomb, the mayor's so-called efficiency expert who began a reorganization of the income division two weeks ago, sent registered letters to 25 property owners in Charlestown and East Boston

'Guilty' Cries 21st Red At Trial

MOSCOW, March 3 (INS)—Bowing to the inevitable, Nikolai Krestinsky, former Vice-commissar for foreign affairs who staggered the world yesterday by pleading innocence to charges of treason and espionage, today recanted and joined his 20 co-defendants in Soviet Russia's latest mass trial by admitting his guilt.

Krestinsky, Soviet ambassador to Berlin from 1921 to 1930, is one of the leading defendants in the newest judicial proceeding of Josef Stalin's purge of "traitors."

Accused yesterday of participating in a conspiracy with the secret service organizations of Great Britain, Germany and Japan to overthrow the Soviet regime, Krestinsky threw overboard all previous concepts of Russian trial procedure by repudiating his confession and proclaiming himself innocent.

This afternoon, however, he suddenly told the court he had an announcement to make.

"Yesterday," he said, "I was overcome by shame and I was not feeling well.

"Therefore I told this court I was not guilty of the charges against me. I wish now to change this statement.

"I plead complete guilt to all the allegations in the indictment."

Krestinsky was specifically accused of receiving $100,000 a year from the German government for valuable information his position enabled him to supply to the German army.

Krestinsky's reversal made the

Mrs. Tobin Has Attack of Grip

Mayor Is Forced to Take Care of Baby

Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, wife of the mayor, is ill in her Brighton home with a heavy attack of grip, the mayor revealed today on his arrival at City Hall.

As a result, he said, he has cancelled plans for a five or six-day vacation he had arranged to take with her and his mother, Mrs. James Tobin, starting next Saturday.

Mayor Tobin appeared haggard when he arrived at his office, and with a wry smile he explained that he had been up most of the night with the baby, Maurice J., Jr., born last December 16.

The baby apparently missed his mother and was fussy during the night, so Dad had to act as substitute, even as any ordinary father.

Dr. Robert J. O'Doherty of Brighton is attending Mrs. Tobin.

Hollywood Hard Hit; Stars Marooned

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 3 (via short wave radio to New York)—It started to rain again today in sodden and stricken Southern California, bringing new fears to Los Angeles and nearby communities, already struggling under a terrific four-day storm, the worst in 60 years.

Toll in lives and property damage as the new storm, light but dangerous under the present precarious conditions or rivers and dams, started pelting the countryside, was believed at least 45 persons dead or missing.

At least 10,000 persons were homeless.

Heavily hit by the flood waters and resulting landslides were Hollywood's famed movie studios and many of the stars themselves.

Several stars had narrow escapes from death or injury, others frantically worked to save their homes from the rising waters, others joined in rescue work.

Millions of dollars in damage has been done by the swirling waters. No fair estimate is possible at the present time, as a dozen southland cities dig out from under tons of debris, try to clear their streets, open their stores, find those who are missing—and count their dead.

The latest disaster was reported from Riverside, 65 miles east of Los Angeles on the edge of the Colorado desert, where 15 persons were missing, believed drowned, after the raging Santa Ana river changed its course north of the city.

The river suddenly cut through a levee, reverting to the 1852 channel and emptying into a lake near Riverside. A dam at the lake collapsed under the pressure, flooding the city to a depth of five feet.

From various parts of the city came reports of citizens disappearing under the rushing waters.

The Santa Ana river also was reported flooding Anaheim, between Los Angeles and Riverside, while officials of the city evacuated hundreds of residents to higher ground.

All kinds of boats were called into service to move the Anaheim

Flood Puts Air Programs Askew

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—Radio network broadcasts to and from Los Angeles were encountering the handicap of a lack of wire communication due to flood conditions today.

With their regular line facilities inoperative into Los Angeles and Hollywood, the National, Columbia and Mutual chains either were temporarily cancelling broadcasts from there or were attempting to get out regular programs originating from the Pacific Coast by means other than wire.

For NBC tonight is one of the biggest "Hollywood Nights" of the week, with Rudy Vallee, Good News of 1938, and Bing Crosby and Bob Burns, following one after the other.

Three alternatives were provided: To attempt to carry the broadcasts from Los Angeles by short wave or by relay of the signals of KFI, regular broadcast station.

To fly the casts of a hundred or more entertainers to San Francisco, from which point they could be hooked onto the network without difficulty.

Maryland Leaders Urge Humane War

Representative Fish Supports Hearst Move for Conference of Nations

BALTIMORE, March 3—Demand that barbaric and inhumane warfare against non-combatants be outlawed was voiced at a monster mass meeting here last night.

Sponsored by veterans' organizations, the meeting, held in the war memorial auditorium, brought adoption of a vigorous resolution, called upon the administration to take the initiative in bringing about international action to prevent aerial bombing of defenseless men, women and children and other barbaric military tactics against civilians.

LIST OF SPEAKERS

Heading the list of speakers addressing the gathering was Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, member of the foreign affairs committee of the House of Representatives. Others were Mayor Howard Jackson, State Attorney General Herbert R. Omer and Commanders Henry W. McMains, of the United Spanish War Veterans, Bruce T. Bair, of the American Legion, Herbert C. Bowers, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Roy C. Bushey, of the Disabled American Veterans.

Commander Bushey presided while Commander Bair presented the resolution which had been drafted jointly by the four veterans' officials.

BACKS HEARST PLAN

In his address Rep. Fish commended the suggestion of William Randolph Hearst that a Congress of Nations be called to lay down a code of rights for non-combatants. Fish said in part:

"It is eminently proper and right that war veterans' organizations should take the leadership in denouncing the inhumanities and barbarities inflicted on non-combatants in modern war.

"I am in entire sympathy with the suggestion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst, that a conference of the great nations be called to agree on a humane code of warfare that will at least protect the lives of women and children and preserve the fundamentals of civilization itself in time of war."

Says U. S. Navy Inadequate For Defense

Williams College Urges Security From Attack

Our present navy is "inadequate" in size to protect this country from invasion, according to James Phinney Baxter, President of Williams College, in a speech at Harvard.

For "security" from air attacks our navy "should be made larger even than England's, Baxter said. "They can't get us by land but they can get us by air," he asserted, speaking of the menace of European powers.

Our present navy, he said, would be adequate only for a defense of a small part of the Pacific coast, in case of war.

"An arch from the Aluitan Islands to Samoa to the Panama Canal might be sufficient to check air attacks, but this would leave our Atlantic coast unprotected," he charged.

"A new and larger increase in our naval strength would be simply a fulfillment of the wish expressed by the late President Wilson that if the United States did not join the League she should make her navy larger than Britain's."

Father Ahern Says:

U. S. Faces Real Atheism Danger

Organized, Aggressive Propaganda Widespread Throughout Nation

By REV. MICHAEL J. AHERN, S. J.

(Written especially for the Boston Evening American)

Atheism, according to current reports, today is gaining enough headway in the United States to cause sober-minded men and women to pause.

Its danger is very real, and, if statistics indicate anything, the infection is widespread throughout the country.

What is worse, it is organized and aggressive.

No less than 100,000 persons are said to profess dogmatic atheism, while any number of others, because of their skepticism, agnosticism and indifferentism to religion, are veering towards it.

SHALLOW THINKING

Much of the current atheistic wave has its genesis in the actual feebleness of intellect characteristic of many, even among our boasted intelligentsia. It is a product of shallow thinking. The reasoning upon which atheists base their theories is often faulty and illogical.

Despite their apparent education and their academic degrees many of them are gullible worshippers of slogans, and take without whimper what presumably learned doctors and journalists and platform lecturers tell them.

Lord Bacon's remarks in his "Essay on Atheism" still holds good, "It is true that a little philosophy bringeth man's mind about to religion."

MORALLY DEPRAVED

Responsibility, however, for 20th century atheism is not all with a faulty intellect. Moral depravity also plays its part. American moral principles and practices are none too high. Many are led to deny God and affiliate with atheism because their lives are at variance with the God-idea.

Atheism imposes no obligations, it demands nothing of its votaries. In fact it relieves them of what to many is an intolerable burden, obedience to a moral law.

The propaganda of the "Four A's" of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, by no means confines itself to the colleges. Special effort has been made by the association into our secondary schools.

UNCIVILIZED ONRUSH

Boys and girls in their teens are being taught to sneer at the God-idea, to ridicule and burlesque religion, to laugh at everything sacred. The most atheistic of literature is being spread among them.

We are facing a serious situation and the time has arrived when the religions of this nation, Catholic, Protestant and Jew alike must band together and form a phalanx which will halt this uncivilized onrush.

It can happen here the same as it happened in Russia, Germany, Spain and Mexico.

POINTS TO EDITORIAL

The recent editorial written by Mr. William Randolph Hearst reveals conditions that really exist and the importance of immediate action by all religions.

As the editorial reads:

"There is in half the world revolt against moral and religious teaching and training."

Here in the United States we must keep our nation democratic and the churches free, which will ultimately result in the protection of religion and welfare of our people.

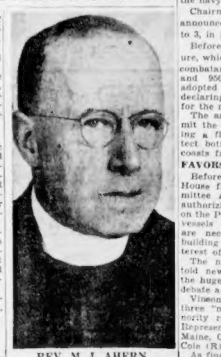
Attempts are being made by atheists in this country to carry their battle into other fields.

There have been attempts before the United States Supreme Court to withhold salaries from chaplains in the army and navy. In Congress one may smile disdainfully at efforts to foster legislation for taxing churches where they are exempt, or from removing "In God We Trust" from our coins, or forbidding away with the bible in the administration of oaths.

SIGNS IN THE WIND

Yet these seeming trifles are all signs of the way the wind is veering.

The time is once again opportune to quote from the Encyclical of the



REV. M. J. AHERN

Pope Pius XI, "Atheistic Communism":

"But in this battle joined by the very ideas of Divinity, it is our fond hope that, besides the host which glories in the name of Christ, all those—and they comprise the overwhelming majority of mankind—who still believe in God and pay Him homage may take a decisive part.

"We therefore renew the invitation extended to them five years ago in our Encyclical Caritate Christi, invoking their loyal and hearty collaboration in order to ward off from mankind the great danger that threatens all alike.

"Since, as we then said, 'believe in God is the unshakable foundation of all social order and of all responsibility on earth. It follows that all those who do not want anarchy and terrorism ought to take steps to prevent the enemies of religion from attaining the goal they have so brazenly proclaimed to the world.'

"This means that all diligence should be exercised by states to prevent within their territories the ravages of an anti-God campaign which shakes society to its very foundation.

"For there can be no authority on earth unless the authority of the Divine Majesty be recognized; no oath will bind which is not sworn in the name of the Living God. We recall what we have said with frequent insistence in the past, especially in our Encyclical Caritate Christi:

"'How can any contract be maintained, and what value can any treaty have, in which every guarantee of conscience is lacking.' And how can there be talk of guarantees of conscience when all faith in God and all fear in God have vanished?

"'Take away this basis, and with it all moral law falls, and there is no remedy left to stop the gradual but inevitable destruction of peoples, families, the state, civilization itself.'"

Huge Naval Bill Approved by House Group

Favors $1,113,546,000 For 68 Vessels, 950 Planes

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The House naval affairs committee approved legislation today to authorize a $1,113,546,000 expansion of the navy.

Chairman Vinson (D.) of Georgia announced the committee voted, 20 to 3, in favor of the bill.

Before acting finally on the measure, which would add to the fleet 46 combatant ships, 22 auxiliary vessels and 950 planes, the committee adopted an amendment by Vinson declaring a policy of non-aggression for the navy.

The amendment also would commit the United States to maintaining a fleet strong enough to protect both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts from simultaneous attack.

FAVORS PACIFIC BUILDING

Before sending the bill to the House floor, Vinson said the committee also approved a provision authorizing the navy to construct in the Pacific Coast shipbuilding yards vessels the President determines are necessary to maintain shipbuilding facilities there in the interest of national defense.

The naval committee chairman told newsmen he planned to call the huge defense bill up for House debate a week from today.

Vinson indicated who cast the three "no" ballots by saying minority reports might be filed by Representative Brewster (R) of Maine, Church (R) of Illinois and Cole (R) of New York.

As finally approved, the navy bill would authorize construction of three battleships, two aircraft carriers, nine cruisers, 23 destroyers and nine submarines at an estimated cost of $731,000,000.

106 MILLIONS FOR PLANES

The auxiliary vessels authorized, including five destroyer tenders, three submarine tenders, 11 seaplane tenders and three repair ships, would cost $246,451,000.

The estimated cost of the 950 planes was $196,000,000.

The bill also authorized a $30,000,000 fund for naval experimentation. Of this amount, the committee earmarked $3,000,000 for construction of a dirigible to replace the decommissioned Los Angeles; $5,000,000 for development of small, swift "mystery" ships and $7,000,000 or testing new bombs, torpedoes and aircraft.

The committee stipulated the proposed dirigible must be of American design and construction.

Asserts Only U. S. Can Save Religion

Sen. Logan Warns of Rising Paganism: Backs Nation's Huge Defense Plan

WASHINGTON, March 3—Congressional committees began completing the nation's billion-dollar defense program today, warned by a senatorial church leader that an unprepared America will mean the "destruction of Christianity."

Debate on the perfected bill is expected on congressional floors later in the week. Administration leaders will strive for early passage so that provisions of the plan can be immediately put into operation.

The danger of Christianity's destruction by pagan nations was pointed out by Senator M. Logan (D.) of Kentucky, who, in a dramatic speech, pledged his support to the entire defensive program.

Logan, a noted churchman, called on Christians of all faiths to demand an adequate national defense for preservation of religious institutions.

He enraged Communists rejoiced when Christians expressed opposition to an adequate army and navy. He made his speech on the Senate floor.

ASSAILS CHURCH FOES

Logan told his colleagues he took his political life in his hands to support the bill. His voice charged with emotion, he said he abhorred war, but added:

"I would much prefer that my sons should be found among the dead, who might die defending sacred things in our national life than that they should be denied the right to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience.

"There are worse things than war. If the Congress should listen to the earnest and sincere pleadings of those Christians in the nation who protest against adequate national defense, the result can easily be foretold.

"It would mean war at no distant date—a war ending in the destruction of Christianity and our religious institutions, as well as the destruction of our freedom as we have known it during the life of our nation."

Logan declared Christianity had been "losing ground at an appalling rate."

"He lifted Russia, with its 200,000,000 Christians a few years ago, from today the name of God has been deleted from the language."

Germany, where Christianity "is not allowed to exist," Spain, where Christianity "is now prostrate," and Italy, "where churches function under the iron heel of a dictator."

He warned that America was menaced by Japan, a pagan "nation gone mad" which "hates Christianity."

Aside from Britain, "forced to enter into some arrangements with Britain to protect herself from destruction," he said, there is only America to preserve Christianity.

"If America," he warned, "is to do nothing in this war-crazed world except to sit idly by without preparation for defense, I point them to the fate of China and Ethiopia."

Britain Jumps Budget For Army 121 Millions

LONDON, March 3 (AP)—Great Britain today handed her potential enemies abroad—and her taxpayers at home—another jolt by anouncing a 23 per cent increase in army appropriations for the coming year.

The army's share this year in Britain's colossal five year rearmament plan will be $532,500,000, an increase of $121,630,000 over the previous year.

Estimates for the air force announced yesterday call for $557,510,000 to be spent in the fiscal year beginning April 1, the second of Britain's $7,500,000,000 five-year rearmament program.

The government, in an official report, said this $7,500,000,000 would not be enough in view of the apparent threat of wars and higher costs.

resulting from "continuous development of modern armament."

The admiralty will present its estimates for the navy tomorrow.

Because of the vast expenditures the British people face the prospect of new and increased taxes.

Analysis of the defense figures, to be debated in Parliament on Monday with a government majority almost certainly assuring their acceptance, indicated that Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon may have to provide for $375,000,000 new revenue when he presents the 1938-39 budget next month.

Defense costs last year were $1,500,000,000. The estimate for this year is $1,756,250,000.

Garbo, Stokowski To Hide for Week

Armed Italian Guards Patrol Villa After Gate Key Is Stolen

RAVELLO, Italy, March 3 (INS)—From the world's prying eyes Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski took refuge today in the sheltered grounds of their verdant retreat, the ancient Villa Cimbrone.

There, they gave one and all to understand, they intend to remain secluded for at least a week, their privacy protected by armed Italian guards at the villa's gates.

The Swedish-born American film star and the internationally-renowned music maestro turned deaf ears to those who sought from them some comment on reports that they may already have been married.

Instead, they hung up on the villa's high, white wall a "no visitors" sign and had the guards posted with orders to shoot, if necessary, to keep intruders away.

WON'T EMERGE FOR WEEK

Down upon this quaint village of Ravello swooped a large contingent of newsmen and photographers when it was learned that the glamorous Garbo and the former master of Philadelphia's Symphony Orchestra were sojourning in the mosque-like villa Cimbrone.

But so intent was the couple on maintaining tranquil retirement that even a telephone call all the way from far-off Philadelphia for Stokowski was turned down by the postoffice here with the announcement:

"The occupants of the villa do not plan to emerge for at least a week."

Inside the villa, it was learned, tremors of apprehension were occasioned by the discovery that the key to the main gate had been either lost or stolen.

FEAR PROWLER

It was then that Garbo and Stokowski asked for and obtained an armed guard, for it was feared some curious prowler might seek to enter the grounds, using the missing key.

Today the only person, aside from Garbo's woman chaperone and the villa's servants, to see the couple, was Miss Nina Caruso, daughter of the proprietor of Ravello's Hotel.

She went to the villa, high up on a jagged crag overlooking the sleepy Bay of Amalfi, to ascertain whether the town's distinguished visitors were coming to the hotel this afternoon for tea, as they had been doing since their arrival six days ago.

Returning with a negative answer Miss Caruso said:

"They looked happy and excited. The mountain air has done them much good."

Girls Spurn Wire Kisses

Students in Wellesley Renege on Lark

Two Pine Manor School lassies in Wellesley, who can dish it out but can't take it, were kissless today, despite Western Union cooperation.

Several weeks ago, as a lark, the girls dispatched a duck to a boy in Berkshire School, Berkshire, via Western Union, as a sort of freak valentine.

Today it was revealed by the Western Union office at Newtonville that the boy had telegraphed a kiss to each of the girls this week, but when 18-year-old Messenger Thomas Hickey was sent to deliver the kisses the girls reneged.

Flash! Two Boys Give All News Of Marshfield

Brothers, 10 and 11, Admit Trouble With Spelling

MARSHFIELD, March 3—Flash!—The circulation of "The Marshfield Commentator" rose to 120 today as its latest issue was being prepared for the presses by Arthur M. Jr., and Richard P. Sherrill brothers aged 11 and 10, respectively, who have sworn to be "very careful about our spelling."

The first issue of the "Commentator" did have a few misspellings and a noticeable lack of punctuation, but, after all, it was the first issue and also it's very easy to hit the wrong typewriter keys.

Arthur entered the publishing business with the crude implements of a portable typewriter and an old mimeograph machine. But before he did so he informed his former employer, for whom he delivered a weekly newspaper of a neighboring town, quitting his job as any honorable competitor would do.

HERE'S SOME ITEMS

Then he and Richard, assistant publisher, got busy and began their newspaper career. Here are some of the items from their first issue:

"Mr. Brigs scidded and smashed his car into a telephone post his car was insherd and its fixed now."

"Mrs. Eady Prat (Ed. note: local hairdresser) has a baby and she has moved into a new house she is still working as a barber."

A movie review by Richard read:

"Allebaba goes to town. Eddy Canter and 3 men hookes a ride on an express train. Eddy was dancing around and the door opened in back of him and he fell out in to the African deasert."

BEING CAREFUL

"In the first issue of the Marshfield Commentator I spelled a lot of words wrong and a lot of people joked about it. Now I am being extra careful about my spelling because good Spelling and Corete english are imporent to a newspaper man."

The Marshfield Commentator is sold from house to house and to persons getting off trains. Mail subscriptions number 50, among them Homer S. Cummings, United States Attorney General; Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Leo Reisman, orchestra leader.

Jail Bride Center Of Family Clash

Eighteen-year-old Mrs. James Brushingham, the "prison library bride," isn't too old for dolls. In her Roxbury home she was photographed with one of her prettiest. She had just returned from the Charles Street Jail, where she married James Brushingham, 16.

Girl Happy as Husband, 16, Faces Burglary Charge in Court

A verbal clash between members of the two families—ended only by the intervention of court officers—today failed to dampen the happiness of an 18-year-old "jail library bride" of one day.

"This is the happiest day of my life, even if my husband is in handcuffs," the former Bertha Ford, of Linden Park street, Roxbury, told reporters in the corridor outside Roxbury court.

Taken from Charles Street Jail to answer to charges of breaking and entering and larceny was the bridegroom, 16-year-old James Brushingham, of Hammond street, Roxbury, married yesterday in the library of the jail.

With members of both families huddled in separate groups in the courthouse corridor, signs that a bitter feeling existed came when the bride's brother, William, exclaimed:

"My folks have been opposing the marriage for several months!"

OFFICERS INTERVENE

Showing open resentment at the remarks of his daughter-in-law's brother, Harry Brushingham, father of the bridegroom, replied hotly until officers intervened.

Unmindful of it all, however, was the bride, standing near her "in-laws" with whom she is living.

The couple were married in a simple 15-minute ceremony in the dim-lit library on the second floor of the jail.

The bride confessed her love for her husband since their school days when he went to English High.

"He isn't really bad, and I'm proud to marry him," she said, "even in jail. No matter what happens I'll wait for him."

At the home of her new parents-in-law she confessed that she hasn't been to her own home since the day last week when her husband was given special permission to be married.

HOLDS BABY DOLL

"Some day I hope there'll be a real one," she confessed shyly, as she held in her arms a baby doll.

"Maybe you think I'm still a little girl!"

The couple, when they are united, will stay at the Brushingham home until they are able to leave for their own house near Albany, N. Y.

Not Even a Semi-Nude To Be Permitted Class In Jamaica Plain

No nudes or even "semi-nudes" has decreed today by Works Progress Administration officials in response to a proposal that professionals and students model in bathing suits for the aesthetic edification of an art class.

It all started when an advanced class in the Adult Recreation Project, sponsored by the Boston Community Service, decided that they'd done enough sketching of potatoes, vases and other such inanimate objects.

So they suggested to Instructor Ibert R. Carcano that (progress being the keynote) they proceed to the study of human life instead of vegetable and mineral.

Carcano consulted W. Duncan Russell, executive secretary of the Community Service organization, and Russell kibashed the whole thing with an emphatic "No, no, a thousand times, no nudes!" (Or semi-nudes.)

And so the class, which meets Monday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings in the Hillside School center in Jamaica Plain, will now go back to the study and sketching of potatoes, vases and such—BUT NO NUDES.

Bandit Beats Aged Woman

An elderly Roxbury woman was brutally beaten early today when she refused to turn over money to a boudoir bandit in her Blue Hill avenue home.

The victim, Miss Hattie Ray, 78, told police at City Hospital, she recognized her assailant as the 20-year-old son of a woman friend. Police immediately sought him for questioning.

The woman's screams attracted other occupants of the dwelling, who broke down a door to go to her rescue.

After battling off the rescuers, the bandit fled, leaving his victim bleeding fro mcuts on her face and head.

Harold McPhee, 32, made a valiant attempt at capture but lost the fleeing man.

The attack began, with the bandit repeating his demands for money while he punched her into unconsciousness.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., March 3—Karl Gersti, 45, secretary of the National Association of Leather Glove Manufacturers, was dead here today after an illness of nearly a month.

Report Contact In Kidnaping

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 3 (AP)—Police expectantly awaited a "break" in the case of 12-year-old Dexter Ledoe, missing one week today, as reports persisted contact had been made with the supposed kidnapers.

The frantic father, Murray Levine, refused pointblank to admit whether he had paid the $50,000 investigators said was demanded in a third ransom note.

The New York attorney, who has remained since Monday cloistered within his fashionable suburban home here with his wife and 10-year-old daughter, intimated a statement would be forthcoming soon. He again appealed to police to let him handle the case unaided.

Rabbi Abraham Nowak, supposed intermediary whose secretary found the third ransom message, said his wife returned home early today after a four-hour absence. The rabbi declined an explanation.

"There will be a proper time when you will have your information," he added significantly.

Drop to Zero Due Tonight

'Coldest of Winter' Is the Forecast

Tonight probably will be the coldest of this Winter, the weather forecaster warned today. It is expected to be zero or possibly lower in some sections of Greater Boston.

A cold wave is headed for Boston from Canada, where temperatures of 48 below zero at Doucet, Quebec, and 46 below at White River, Ontario are reported.

The weather bureau here, at 10:30 a. m. today, ordered northeast storm warnings hoisted from Nantucket to Delaware Breakwater. Small-craft warnings were ordered posted north of Nantucket to Eastport, Me.

For the first time in years, today, the weather report issued here was incomplete. Nile a. m. temperature reports from Los Angeles were missing. It was explained the report failed to come in because all telegraph lines are down, due to the 10-inch rainfall that has flooded the West Coast.

Fated S-4's Namesake Starts Off on Trial Runs

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 3 (AP)—Larger and equipped with more safety devices than her ill-fated predecessor which sank in Provincetown harbor ten years ago with the loss of 40 lives, the Navy's new submarine S-4 engaged in builders' trials off the coast today.

Named the Snapper, the undersea craft was completed officially two days ago. She had been under construction since December, 1935.

The craft at sea today was in command of Lieutenant Commander Franklin O. Johnston.

The new 3-4, built as was the old craft at Portsmouth Navy Yard, is approximately three-quarters as large again. Should it ever become disabled on the ocean floor, each compartment is fitted with special salvage valves which can be opened by divers after air or food lines have been attached.

The craft also has quick-action water-tight doors and hatches and two escape trunks located at each end, from which men can escape by using the Momsen lung. An ascending buoy with 200 feet of line can be released to the surface.

Two hatches on the craft are fitted so a rescue ship can secure a diving bell, open up the hatch and go inside with divers.

Duce Kisses D'Annunzio Brow as Poet Lies in State

GARDONE RIVIERA, Italy, March 3 (AP)—The body of Poet-Warrior Gabriele D'Annunzio today began its journey to the tomb today.

Throughout the night it had lain in state in the courtyard outside Vittoriale, D'Annunzio's villa.

In the flickering light of candles and flares, hundreds of admirers and many of them from abroad, filed past the bier.

D'Annunzio's widow, the Princess of Monte Nevoso, arrived from Paris soon after nightfall last night, and knelt by the body for nearly three hours.

Bonfires lighted the hills surrounding Vittoriale, in accordance with the rite the poet decreed in commemoration of his companions in arms who died in the march on Fiume in Fascism's early days.

Scores of priests, kneeling in the court, recited prayers for the dead throughout the night.

Soon after dawn, Premier Mussolini returned from Brescia, where he spent the night, and watched as the body was placed in a simple oak coffin without decoration.

It Duce advanced and kissed the dead man's brow, and the coffin then was sealed.

A cortege of several thousands, including Fascist organizations and war veterans bearing 100 banners, followed the body as it was borne on a gun caisson to the parish church of San Niccolao.

There, in the presence of Mussolini, his ministers and representatives of the royal family, the Fascist party and the Royal Academy, D'Annunzio received the benediction of the Church which long had disapproved of him for his writings.

The body was carried back to Vittoriale and placed on the bow of the destroyer Pugli, set on the crest of a hill on the D'Annunzio estate, where it was to remain under guard until night.

Tomorrow the body will be placed temporarily near the tomb of the poet's mother.

'I'm Guilty,' Red Cries at Trial In Moscow

Man Who Refuted Confession Joins 20 Comrades

confessions of guilt unanimous. It now appears virtually certain that all 21 defendants will be marched before the firing squad when the trial is over.

Previously, Vladimir I. Ivanoff, former chief of the Soviet timber industry, had stood up in court and almost eagerly confessed:

"I am guilty of the worst crime, as a member of the Rightist Bloc. I am ready to reveal all my "WORKED FOR BRITAIN"

Ivanoff was the first to resume the slow parade of the former highly placed "old Bolsheviks," who one by one bared their perfidy.

He began by admitting that he was once a member of the Czarist police, who "betrayed the workers."

In a crescendo rise of official accusations, Ivanoff said he became a follower of Nikolai I. Bucharin, the famous editor of the press near him in the prisoners' dock.

"Like a crow smelling carrion, I joined the group led by Bucharin," he said.

Ivanoff directly linked Bucharin's intelligence service with a plot aimed to "overthrow the Soviets." He participated in a conspiracy to retain Russian timber concessions for English lumber interests after this was accomplished, he said.

Arkadi P. Rosengoltz, former foreign trade commissar and one of the defendants, sold lumber to the English at a tremendous loss, he affirmed.

Leon Trotsky was again linked to the defendants as Ivanoff asserted that as late as 1936 Bucharin threatened death to him and others who when wanted to confess their plotting.

SPIED ON STUDENTS

Ivanoff told his judges he became a Czarist informer as a high school student at Tula at the age of 17, and later as a medical student in Moscow, spying in both places on striking fellow students.

As Bucharin organized opposition within the Communist Party, including bands to murder Lenin, Ivanoff said he went along with the Bucharin program.

Bucharin matched wits with Prosecutor Vishinsky, who questioned him briefly.

Bucharin, who was a close associate of Lenin, appeared frail and shrunken.

"I want the whole world to see how certain deviations can lead to horrible developments," he explained.

Disputing Ivanoff's statement that he (Bucharin) had said in 1928 the time was ripe for an armed uprising, Bucharin said it was in 1932.

"I gave the uprising its orientation," he said. "Let me be held responsible for everything it involves."

"You will be, without your special request," Vishinsky shot back.

P. T. Zubaroff, former vice-commissar of agriculture, testified on his participation in a plot in 1936 to assassinate Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

He confessed he had been a spy since 1935, preparing information to be sent to Germany. He told the assassination of Joseph Stalin, War Commissar Klementi E. Voroshiloff and Lazarus M. Kaganovich, commissar for heavy industry, also had been discussed, but only the killing of Molotoff appeared "technically possible."

A former provincial official of Czarist police named Vasyliev took the stand, the first witness in the trial, to corroborate Zubaroff's story that he had been a Czarist police agent in 1908, 1910 and 1916 under assumed names.

Stalin Career as Spy For Czar Seen as Reason For Present 'Hoax' Trial

By ISAAC DON LEVINE
(AUTHOR OF "STALIN")

NEW YORK, March 3—Is Stalin a former agent of the Czar's Okhrana, trying to wipe out in blood the preferred traces of his past career in the secret service of the Romanoffs?

As the author of the first biography of Stalin, the writer has long been familiar with reports that some of the old Bolsheviks had in their possession a secret file from the archives of the Okhrana proving that Stalin was a super-spy for the Czar when he joined forces with Lenin.

One of these reports had it that Tomsky, the head of the Soviet Federation of Labor who committed suicide on the eve of the Kamenev-Zinoviev trial, was the keeper of the secret dossier which contained "the goods" on Stalin.

So incredible did this charge appear, in spite of the fact that there are suspicious circumstances in Stalin's career, that one did not dare to make it public without further substantiation.

ISAAC DON LEVINE

The first day of the Moscow trial offers circumstantial evidence that Stalin may be endeavoring to root out all those who have access to proof of his having served as a Czarist agent in Lenin's camp before the revolution. Several such agents were uncovered after the Soviet seizure of power, including the Bolshevik member of the Duma, Malinovsky, an intimate of Lenin's, and were shot, but the identity of two other known Czarist spies around Lenin was never established.

In the face of the phantasmagoria unfolded yesterday before the Moscow military tribunal, sure to daze the civilized world, one point stands out:

If the Czar were to arise from his ashes and secure the aid of the most sinister agents of the Okhrana to draw a net of vengeful indictments around the necks of his executioners—the elite of Bolshevism—he could not conceivably have improved upon Stalin's performance yesterday.

If Stalin is not actually an agent of Hitler's and Mussolini's, he has already done more to undermine the Communist regime and prestige than these two sworn enemies of Sovietism have achieved in years of endeavor.

What is happening in Russia today is the triumph of the counter-revolution and the rise of a super-Fascist state which will make Nazism and Fascism look like models of civilization.

All that remains to complete the liquidation of the Soviet revolution is a mere handful of its surviving makers, led by Maxim Litvinov and War Commissar Voroshilov. The fate of Nicholas Krestinsky, Litvinov's closest associate up to last summer, is the handwriting on the wall for the astute commissar of foreign affairs.

It is certain that Litvinov objected strenuously to the present show trial, being fully aware of its calamitous effects abroad. These objections are more than sufficient to saddle Litvinov with charges of conspiracy and treason, and to land him eventually where his comrades are now.

The torrent of "testimony" produced by the first day's exhibition in Moscow can no more be understood when viewed in detail than a futuristic or dadaistic painting will make sense when its components are studied separately.

It is enough to say that THERE IS A MOUNTAIN OF PROOF FROM STALIN'S OWN WRITINGS AND SPEECHES TO DESTROY EVERY VESTIGE OF THE ACCUSATIONS AGAINST HIS FORMER COMRADES NOW FACING THE FIRING SQUAD.

Vast Coordinated Hoax Staged

Krestinsky, who courageously repudiated his confession in open court at the risk of being declared a "suicide," was a member of the committee of five drafted by Lenin in October, 1917, to organize the Soviet revolution.

Bukharin, who is accused of having plotted the attempted assassination of Lenin in 1918, was named by Lenin in his testament in 1923 as one of the six Bolsheviks worthy to lead the Soviet government. The full records of Dora Kaplan's attempt on Lenin's life were published years ago by the Soviet authorities. It is as if Benedict Arnold came to life and testified that Alexander Hamilton had plotted the assassination of George Washington.

Only those who have had illusions about Stalism, only those who are totally ignorant of the history of the Soviet revolution as written even by Soviet official hands, will attempt to analyze the patent falsehoods declaimed at the Moscow show as if they were parts of "a vast coordinated plot."

What Stalin is staging is a vast coordinated hoax. And one fact establishes it beyond doubt. It is the presence of the former chief of the OGPU, Henry Yagoda, among the self-confessed victims.

It was Yagoda who framed and delivered to the executioners Kamenev, Zinoviev, Piatakov and dozens of other Bolshevik leaders who had confessed to being Trotskyist plotters. Now the arch-plotter in the present case is once more Trotsky, and this time Yagoda who had made his reputation as a bloody purger of Trotskyists stands himself as a confessed Trotskyist!

All Original Communists Must Go

There is, however, a pattern to the seemingly fantastic show put on by Stalin. Three novel features of the indictments and confessions, as brought out in the first session of the so-called trial, attest to it.

First, the British government has been involved in the charges of espionage for the first time in the current Stalin purge. It was absent in the last two show trials. It means that Stalin has given up all hope of friendship with Great Britain and regards it as an enemy from now on. It is his answer to Eden's resignation.

Second, the charge that the Ukraine was to be delivered by the would-be plotters to Germany is Stalin's way of dramatizing his belief that, after swallowing Austria, Hitler would attack that southern section of the Soviet Union.

Third, the spider-web of charges in the present melodrama involves all the great nations of Europe and Asia, except France, in espionage against Soviet Russia. It is Stalin's way of telling the Russian people that the whole world is preparing to march on their country.

The super-Fascist state which Stalin is building is going to take Soviet Russia out of the international setting, and bring her back to the day of Ivan the Terrible when Muscovy was cut off from the rest of the world and when foreign ambassadors were kept in jail for months to discourage relations with the outside world. Already foreigners are being banned from Russia in increasing numbers.

Eastern Air Line Control Goes to Rickenbacker

War Ace Wins Six Months' Fight for Plane System

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—The leading ace in America's air forces in the World War, Capt. Eddie V. Rickenbacker, apparently has won a six months' fight for control of Eastern Air Lines, one of the "Big Five" of domestic carriers.

E. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, Inc., said in Washington today that negotiations for sale of the line to two banking groups supporting Rickenbacker were progressing "very nicely."

AWAITS STOCK VOTE

The agreement will be subject to a vote of the stockholders in North American Aviation, Inc.

Plans call for notification of the stockholders on March 1, of a meeting to be held 10 days later to consider the sale.

Rickenbacker and another major air line had been bidding for purchase of Eastern Air Lines since last summer. The purchase price was understood to be $3,500,000.

Richard Whitney, vice-president of N. A. A. and general manager of Eastern, has been credited with most of the re-building of the property to its present position in the industry. Eastern is one of the few domestic lines which has shown a profit in the last two years.

The dickering over sale of Eastern, which flies from New York to Miami, Fla., and Chicago to Miami, has involved General Motors Corp., owner of the largest block of stock in North American.

Behind Rickenbacker were understood to be two New York banking houses, Smith Barney & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The cash payment for the line was reliably reported to be a quarter of a million dollars more than the amount offered by another banking house controlling a transcontinental carrier.

N. A. A's decision to dispose of Eastern was predicated on the federal government's disinclination to grant contracts for aircraft construction to manufacturers actively interested in air line operation.

Fare Boost Hit At Winthrop

Winthrop residents today prepared to battle anew with the Department of Public Utilities against the 15-cent fare and reduction of service which went into effect this morning on the Narrow Gauge railroad.

The action followed a vote of citizens attending a protest meeting at Shirley Street School.

The recommendation of the transportation committee for acceptance of the railroad changes was passed at a town meeting by a 163 to 1 vote of town meeting members.

City Cuts Down Flow Of Water in Drive to Collect Unpaid Bills and three in Dorchester, warning them of his move.

DEFIED BY TENANT

Irate tenants in the two sections of the city greeted water employes when they began to cut off the flow of water.

In one case an East Boston tenant defied the men brandishing a sledge hammer.

"I have a wife and five children and they're not going without water" he said.

The third section of the city to be "invaded" was Dorchester. An estimate of the number affected could not be immediately determined.

Daniel M. Sullivan, division engineer of the water department, told the Boston Evening American he regretted the "hardships forced on innocent tenants' but that he felt the inconvenience would result in complaints to the landlords, forcing the latter to pay the bills.

SAY THEY WILL PAY

Sullivan also stated taht "a number" of the property owners, after receiving the registered letters, had telephoned his department declaring thir intentions to pay their bills.

The residents affected in East Boston, meanwhile, declared they would appeal to City Councillor Frank W. Irwin to demand that "something be done" to restore the full flow of water in their homes. A protest mass meeting was suggested.

In the letter to the property owners, the city declared:

"Also or service bill of the city is an important matter and must be paid promptly. The city is not justified in discriminating between its citizens as to the payment of its bills.

NOT UNTIL PAID

"The department has exercised leniency in the payment of these bills beyond what now appears to have been a reasonable point. The water will not be turned on again until the foi amounts have been received by the collector."

Tobin Due to Oust 3 Chiefs in Purge

Mayor Tobin today was reported authoritatively to have instituted a widespread City Hall purge in which several prominent office holders will be ousted from office on April 1 and replaced by Tobin supporters.

Among those to go, according to reliable sources, are Election Commission Chairman David B. Shaw; Soldiers Relief Commissioner Charles H. Carey, and John F. O'Hearn, member of the board of assessors and son-in-law of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

The mayor already has requested the resignations of Shaw and O'Hearn, it was asserted.

Shaw is expected to be supplanted by Fred Dowling, of Brighton, now a member of the election commission. The present chairman was named to his $7000-a-year post by former Mayor Mansfield in 1934 and was considered among the most influential members of his administration.

It was declared also that O'Hearn will be succeeded in his position, which pays $6000 a year, by Francis T. Keefe, a close friend of Mayor Tobin and at present an assistant assessor. O'Hearn is also a Mansfield appointee.

Prominently mentioned to replace Carey when the axe falls is Herman L. Bush of Roxbury, World War hero and active Tobin worker in the recent campaign.

At the same time, it was revealed that the 103 constables left in office when the Mansfield regime went out are to be replaced next month by 55 Tobin backers.

23 Million Taxes Unpaid, Tobin Says

In his first appearance at the State House since he assumed office, Mayor Tobin today told the committee on taxation that unpaid property taxes in Boston totalled $23,000,000.

The mayor appeared in support of a bill, filed by the city, which would compel persons to pay at least 75 per cent of their property tax before they would be allowed to enter an appeal.

Mayor Tobin explained that the bill would exempt home owners having property of $20,000 or less.

Discussing the tax situation in Boston, the mayor declared that $7,000,000 in property had been taken over by the city as a result of unpaid taxes.

Corporation Counsel Henry Parkman, Jr., revealed to the committee that 2600 cases—amounting to $5,000,000 in unpaid property taxes were being appealed.

The mayor also spoke in support of two bills—that interest on unpaid taxes shall be at the rate of 6 per cent in July instead of the second bill in November and that taxes be allowed to be paid either in quarterly or monthly installments.

Sisters, Saved In Fire, Dying

FRYEBURG, Me., March 3—Two small girls were reported in dying condition and three other persons were nursing injuries today, after effecting the rescue of the girls, who were trapped in the bedroom of their burning home.

Dying in State Street Hospital, Portland, are Marjorie, 13, and Marilyn Haley, 10.

Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, their uncle and aunt, and Fred Le Brake. They were treated for cuts, smoke inhalation and shock.

Two brothers of the girls, Hubert, 8, and Arthur, 8, escaped death by leaping 15 feet from their bedroom window.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were injured when they climbed through a broken window to get Marilyn.

Court Upholds Woman's Claim

Mrs. Gladys Holland of Methuen is entitled to collect $570 damages from Mrs. Mary Bischoff of Methuen, an intimate friend, whom she was teaching to drive at the time of an accident in August, 1934.

This today was the ruling of the State Supreme Court in connection with a suit in which the defense had claimed Mrs. Holland had assumed full risk in volunteering to teach the defendant to drive.

U. S. May Claim Pacific Islands

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull, reliable sources said today, is studying old documents relating to the Pacific Islands, with the probable result that the United States may lay claim to many of them which have possibilities as airplane bases.

These sources added that diplomatic correspondence with Great Britain on this subject may be entered into soon.

Report Awaited On Five Police

HAVERHILL, March 3—The civil service commission will shortly announce, according to reports in political circles in the city, Council, may name any of the first five men on the reserve eligibility list for appointment to the regular force.

The mayor has stated he favored the appointment of those ranking preferably the first three on the list.

It was stated in Boston that the first five men will have the same rating, since they were appointed on the same day. As listed on the reserve list, the men rank in the promotion are Herman Fauth, Andrew Sheehan, Philip H. McDonald, John Francis Coughlin and Edward W. Cooper.

New Tax Bill Business Aid House Told

Doughton Predicts 'Trade Stimulation' As Debate Opens

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Chairman Doughton (D.) of North Carolina of the Ways and Means committee, predicted in the House today, that through the new tax bill, business would be "stimulated and encouraged."

Opening debate on the measure, Doughton said it would—among other things—modify the undistributed profits and capital gains levies, which business men have protested hurting commerce.

DEBATE LIMITED

Debate was begun after the House decided to limit it to 12 hours, but placed no restriction on amending the bill. This action encouraged those who want the profits and gains taxes repealed outright.

Doughton said the bill would "greatly improve" the tax system with respect to "equity and certainty."

"The tax burden will be more fairly distributed and business will be stimulated and encouraged," he said.

Witnesses who appeared at hearings, he said, contend "that the undistributed profits tax has been disastrous, that they are prevented from carrying on an expansion program, that many corporations find it impossible to secure working capital and continue in business."

DENIES HARDSHIP

"However," he added, "it was completely demonstrated not to be so in the case of those appearing during the hearings, or those brought here to give some semblance of such being the case.

"During the hearings, not a single specific case of undue hardship was established.

"On the contrary, practically every witness showed an utter lack of knowledge of the effect of revisions proposed by a tax sub-committee, and even the existing law itself, as it applied to his own particular business, except that they had to pay a little more in taxes."

Sergeant Tells Of 'Bribe' Cash

Testimony that after he had marked money for Robert L. Smith of Beachmont, he saw Smith talking with someone in a police car, was given in Superior Court today by Sergeant Frank Bombach of East Boston station.

Sergeant Bombach was a witness at the trial of Patrolman Francis X. Delaney of the same district, charged with soliciting and accepting a $25 bribe from Smith.

Yesterday Captain Joseph Buccigross of East Boston station testified that he had found $5 of the alleged bribe money in Delaney's possession.

Sergeant Bombach testified today that he had marked two $10 and one $5 bill.

He said that afterward he went and sat in a car in a parking lot at Bunnington and Swift streets, East Boston, on November 4 of last year, at 3:45 p. m.

At about 6 o'clock Sergeant Bombach testified, he saw a police car approach and stop and saw Smith talking with someone in the police car.

Dr. Williams Put Back on State Payroll

Moynihan Decides Long Illness No Bar to Salary

Dr. David L. Williams, Massachusetts' $10,000-a-year commissioner of mental diseases, was reinstated on the State's payroll today.

Patrick J. Moynihan, chairman of the state commission on administration and finance, said that upon consideration it was decided that Dr. Williams' contentions that it was illegal to drop him from the payroll because of his long illness is correct.

The present law permits stoppage of salaries of employes who are absent from their duties for any length of time, but does not apply to department heads, Moynihan said it was decided.

Dr. Williams' salary has been held up for the past two weeks.

James W. Burke, Dr. Williams' attorney, called at the governor's office shortly before Moynihan announced the administration and finance commission's about-face.

Burke left a message with Paul C. Ryan, the governor's secretary, presumably having to do with Williams' charges that he was assaulted, once in the governor's council chamber, once in front of his home.

The council has asked Dr. Williams to name his assailants, one of whom he is quoted as saying was "a high state official."

Burke also conferred with Moynihan.

Hunt Lost Plane In Canyon

erating plant No. 8 on the north fork of the San Joaquin river," O. W. Coyle, chief pilot of the western region for TWA, declared.

Coyle and Hubert Stancil, Fresno TWA manager, were directing a ground crew survey on the south side of the river between the Eastman plant and powerhouse No. 1 of the San Joaquin Light & Power Company, approximately 20 miles west.

It was in this region that a crew under Stancil at dusk last night reported finding a fire on the mountainside which indicated the plane had crashed in that area.

Coyle declared he believed Pilot Gravelle intended to follow the course of the San Joaquin river rather than pull up blindly into the clouds.

"It would be a natural course under such conditions," Coyle said.

Coyle was pessimistic about the possibility of any of the nine persons aboard the plane being found alive.

General Johnson Says:

ABOUT MONOPOLIES

Two Ideas Directly Opposed

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, March 3—There are two ideas about the campaign against business "bigness" which is sometimes loosely and only partly truthfully called, a campaign against "monopoly."

These two ideas are more than inconsistent. They are absolutely opposed.

Hugh S. Johnson

One bases on the very old principle that business bigness is against public policy because it makes possible the exploitation of consumers by charging them higher prices and exacting large profits than the goods or services furnished are worth.

The other is that business bigness is bad because it permits goods and services to be furnished to the public at a price lower than small independent operators can accept and stay in business.

Thus, one complaint against business bigness is the charge that it makes prices to consumers too high and the other complaint is that it makes prices to consumers too low.

One is based on a purpose to protect the public. The other is based on a purpose to protect the small business man and maintain him in business even at the cost of higher prices to the consumers.

These two ideas mix no better than oil and water. I am not here arguing for or against either. I am merely saying that, until we know what we really mean as between two opposing theories, we can't make any very good judgments for or against either.

An example I have used here before illustrates this point. The proprietor of a great grocery chain came to me in NRA and showed me that, due to efficiencies in mass-production and mass-distribution, he could cut the price of bread to the public at least 20 per cent and still make the same profit on bread that he did on the rest of his line.

But, if he did that, his independent individual small grocery competitors could not meet his price. Bread is a staple which brings people to a grocery where they are apt to buy the rest of their necessities. As a "loss leader" it would be ideal and this man could have used it as a "leader"—not at a loss, but at his normal profit, and knew his figures were correct because I had made a study of bread distribution.

Yet, if he had done that, he would have put a great many independents in both the grocery and bakery trades out of business.

His problem clearly pictures the conflict between these two ideas. What should be governmental policy—business bigness — to preserve less efficient smaller enterprises or to get goods to consumers at the lowest price?

As recently widely advertised studies show, business consolidations of several independents have sometimes not made lower costs or lower prices or even greater profits. That is undoubtedly true. It is equally true that frequently the reverse is the case and, furthermore, where the small enterprise can undercost, underprice and overprofit the big concern, the latter will become small and the former large, and these studies add little to the essential question of bigness in business when it actually does result in lower prices.

That question remains simply:

"Shall we encourage it to benefit the public, or penalize it to maintain littleness at public expense?"

The answer isn't as easy as it sounds. There is such a thing as getting too efficient. Kansas or Iowa organized as unified, mechanized, incorporated farm factories could probably produce double their output at half the cost and with one-third the people. But what would become of two-thirds of the populations of those states thus rendered surplus?

It is the same problem as that of replacing men with machines. You can't stop the march of science and invention. But maybe you can make it keep in step with the music of human necessity.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Michael MacWhite, Irish Minister to the United States, is sailing for a new post, and with his departure The American people are losing an old friend.

Foreign diplomats, as a rule, live in houses of gilded glamour. They do not get down and grub with the Congressmen, cookies and bottle washers who ride on the merry-go-round of Washington.

They know as little about the country to which they are accredited as the Los Angeles WPA worker does about diplomacy. Both get their ideas from the movies.

In such an atmosphere Michael MacWhite has stood out as one who knew the United States almost better than the United States knows itself.

He knew, for instance, the police chief of every large city in the country, the mayors of many, and had appeared before Irish-American gatherings in every state north of the Mason-Dixon line.

In Chicago, he knew almost as much about local politics as Mayor Kelly. In New York the sachems of Tammany called him by his first name. While in Boston—Well, Boston was a tough spot even for MacWhite—it has too many Irish factions.

In Washington, high officials trusted the Irish Minister more, probably, than any other diplomat. He was almost one of the family.

One day he was in the President's office when Joseph P. Kennedy, then chairman of the Maritime Commission, came in to explain a report on the merchant marine, which was marked, "Confidential—for the President." So MacWhite started to withdraw.

"That's all right," said Kennedy, motioning for him to stay, "this is 'Confidential for the President and MacWhite only.'"

HOOVER'S HAIR DOWN—MacWhite also was one on good terms with President Hoover, and is one of the few diplomats who ever witnessed those rare moments when Hoover relaxed. One of those occurred during the annual High Jinks at Bohemian Grove near San Francisco about nine years ago, where MacWhite was a guest.

Arriving at the cabin where he was to stay, MacWhite noticed several cots around the room and asked his guide:

"Whose bed is that?"

"Mr. Hoover's."

"Whose is that?"

"That's Mr. Wilbur's, the ex-Secretary of the Interior."

"Well, whose bed is that?"

"That's Will Rogers's." (Will was killed a few weeks later.)

This completed the guest list for that particular cabin. MacWhite was hurried off to a cocktail party where the host announced:

"We've been trying to keep this cocktail cool for twenty minutes waiting for you. We've got your favorite kind—a daiquiri."

"Who told you that was my favorite?" asked MacWhite (who has no favorite.)

"We got the recipe from Mr. Hoover."

Later Mr. Hoover had a Benedictine. Although he did not go in for anything stronger, the ex-President kept his bunk-mates up until late that night regaling them with stories of his war days in Belgium.

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE—Probably one reason MacWhite has been such a sympathetic student of the American people is that most of his life has been spent at sea with the stark realities of life. He has been a bank clerk, farmer, newspaperman and professional soldier.

His military career began with the World War. MacWhite enlisted with the French Foreign Legion, was wounded in the first French offensive at Arras, survived the withering fire of the Turks at Gallipoli, and spent the rest of the war on the Macedonian front, where once again he was wounded.

Typhoid fever was coupled with the second wound and at one time MacWhite was taken to the death ward—for patients for whom all hope is abandoned. When he came out of the death ward he was named "Le Revenant" or "The Ghost."

"I refused to conform even then," says the Irish minister, remembering that day.

Many Dead, 10,000 Homeless in Flood

Dwellers Ordered To Evacuate Towns On West Coast

Other towns along the river were in danger, too.

At Long Beach, 25 miles south of Los Angeles, fresh efforts were launched to recover the bodies of ten persons who went to their deaths when a pedestrian bridge spanning the mouth of the Los Angeles river collapsed into the muddy torrent.

Included were two women, a small boy, three sailors and four men. They were standing on the bridge watching the unusual sight of water in the usually dry Los Angeles river, but this time the river had gone mad.

SWEEPS VENTURA

At Ventura, 60 miles from Los Angeles on the Pacific, the Ventura river, ordinarily a peaceful little creek, swept over the town and fields, with a toll of one man dead and two missing.

Ventura called all able-bodied men for rescue work and asked for 200 more from Santa Barbara, 40 miles northward, a request which was immediately answered.

The Santa Barbara volunteers rushed to their stricken neighbor city and joined in the difficult work of removing marooned citizens from their homes to the hills which border Ventura to the east.

Late dispatches from Riverside told of 75 refugees sheltered in a schoolhouse, but without water, gas or lights.

Hundreds of other citizens of Riverside and other deluged cities were sheltered in all kinds of structures away from the seething waters.

San Bernardino, eight miles from Riverside was heavily hit when a stream known as Lytle Creek swept over its banks, drowning at least five persons.

Witnesses said they saw a woman and a boy and three men disappear. Myrs Myers, a flagman, declared he saw two men clinging to their stalled car in the creek.

"I started to help them," he said, "when their car suddenly overturned and they were swept away."

Firemen in boats saw a boy on a crumbling house. They called for him to come to a tree. He missed, and went down in the boulder-strewn waters.

A constant watch was being kept on ten dams part of a huge flood control project in the hills around Los Angeles. Workers were toiling in torrents over all the dams, but none had broken.

San Gabriel Dam No. 1, 14 miles from Los Angeles and above the town of Azusa, was releasing an overflow to fast authorities removed 2500 persons from the Mexican quarter.

3 DEAD IN LOS ANGELES

At least eight persons were known dead in Los Angeles and suburbs.

ALL LINES DOWN

Airplane, train and highway transportation was paralyzed.

Power and telephone service was seriously disrupted in Los Angeles and all lines out of the city were down.

Telegraph and telephone companies reported they could not get farther than a few miles out of Los Angeles.

The only means of communication was by short wave radio.

Thousands of automobiles were damaged by submersion. Many of them were swept away by swirling waters.

Highways leading out of the city were virtually deserted, and motorists were warned of the imminent peril of landslides on all roads.

Coast and valley highways to San Francisco were dotted by slides. One slide on the ridge route through the valley partially buried a 21-passenger bus near Gorman, 60 miles north of Los Angeles.

HIGHWAYS UNDER WATER

None of the passengers was injured, and the bus turned back to Bakersfield.

Highways south of San Pedro also were under at least two feet of water which hid treacherous boulders.

The Red Cross and American Legion mobilized hundreds of relief workers, who sought out the injured and administered emergency aid.

As reports of the extensive damage trickled into the city from outlying communities, isolated for nearly 24 hours, it became apparent that residents in the heavily populated canyons were still in danger of landslides.

More than 150 slides were reported, in some instances carrying canyon homes to destruction.

Scores of homes in the fertile San Fernando valley, 20 miles north of Los Angeles, were endangered by the additional menace of rain water still cascading down the Tehachapi watershed.

From all parts of central and southern California came reports of flood and rain casualties.

The picture colony of Malibu was isolated by slides. Many of the film world's stars were believed marooned at Malibu.

Four hundred families evacuated homes in Venice, the "canal city," when the flood waters reached first floor levels.

EVACUATION ORDERED

Pasadena's business section was under water, with several streets completely blocked off by the flood.

At Glendale, the Verdugo Canyon wash dam threatened to go out, prompting Glendale police to declare an emergency zone and order evacuation of homes in the canyon.

Shortly after Mrs. Carter J. Carson on Valentine Drive fled from her ten-room home, the house slid into the canyon as the rain-sodden hillside gave way.

At Santa Ana, the Santa Ana river coursed over its banks following a cloudburst in the Big Bear area.

At Palm Springs, desert resort, the flood waters had inundated the streets above the curbings.

At Santa Monica, the torrential downpour seeped under pavements in some sections of the city, causing streets to sink slightly.

Los Angeles Word Only By Radio

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3 (AP)—Radio was Los Angeles' only means of communication with the outside early today. Telephone and telegraph companies announced they were unable to accept calls or messages for Los Angeles. The telephone company said its last line to Los Angeles via San Francisco was washed out shortly before 1 a. m., (4 a. m., EST).

HOLLYWOOD, March 3 (via Short Wave Radio to New York)—Major studios came in for their share of grief as a result of the worst storm in southern California in 60 years.

Twentieth Century-Fox reported that a Scottish village set for the picture "Kidnaped" had been demolished.

At the Warner Bros. lot a large tin and wooden whale used in "When You Were Born" was caught in a torrent of rushing waters and carried off into the Los Angeles river.

Many stars, including Bob Burns, George Jessel and Jimmy Ellison, told their studios they were unable to leave their homes because of flood conditions.

Director George Marshall of 20th Century-Fox jumped from his car near Malibu pier in time to escape a slide which washed his sedan into the ocean.

STAR ESCAPES SLIDE

Director Frank Capra planned abandonment of his house between Malibu and Los Feres, because it was feared that a dam across Malibu creek, approximately four miles back in the mountains, might break.

Madeleine Carroll, motion picture star, started for Los Angeles from Malibu and narrowly escaped death in the same slide that carried away Marshall's car. She and Marshall returned to Malibu on foot.

Many of the stars plunged into the rescue work amid the mounting confusion.

Some themselves were "victims," coming to work in rowboats or working frantically with common laborers to sandbag their homes.

Bing Crosby got out his powerful roadster and jovially gave shoves to stalled motorists in North Hollywood.

Bob Burns worked with the laborers he quickly hired to sandbag his estate after the flood did $5000 damage to landscaping.

John Barrymore and W. C. Fields were marooned in their homes on a hill in the Santa Monica Mountains after Bellagio road at Bel Air was washed out.

CARS ALL STALL

Myrna Loy took her gardener's car, but it stalled. Some boys en route to school pushed her out.

A bakery wagon picked up Franchot Tone when his car stalled. The latter was late to MGM as the bakery man had to make several deliveries before continuing to the studios.

Joan Crawford stalled beside a school house. Frank Borzage came along and gave her a "lift."

Three MGM studio cars were sent to rescue Margaret Sullavan when her car became stalled. But they all stalled.

Warren William was marooned in his home and the homes of Spencer Tracy and Robert Armstrong were flooded by two feet of water.

GABLE "ALL WET"

Attempting to reach his studio from his home in San Fernando Valley, Clark Gable had to abandon his roadster and take to a station wagon. The latter did very well for a time, then it stalled. However, the momentum of the water carried him forward and Clark finally reached the studio albeit wet and late.

Another late comer at M-G-M was Norma Shearer, but she wasn't as late as the rest of the cast. After an extended trip from Santa Monica she arrived in costume on the "Marie Antoinette" set only to find that others in the cast were delayed by the storm.

Norris Groff, who is Abner of the Lum and Abner radio team, was forced to bring his entire family to town when his home in San Fernando Valley was surrounded by water.

George Raft and Sylvia Sidney arrived on their studio set in a rowboat.

Leo Carrillo Rescues Man

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 3 (INS)—Movie actor Leo Carrillo turned cowboy in a real life "thriller" today and rated a hero's salute for quick thinking and action which probably saved the life of Ralph Duffin of Pasadena.

Carrillo with Policeman D. H. McLean of the Santa Monica force was standing near his home watching a work crew attempting to prevent a wall of the Santa Monica canyon from sliding into the rushing waters below.

The watchers saw a man slip and slide down the canyon wall into the raging water.

Carrillo seized a rope and ran toward the stream fashioning it into a lariat, and as the waters carried the victim past, made a perfect toss, the loop settling down around the drowning man's shoulders.

YOUR GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO DRIVE A BETTER CAR

National Used Car Exchange Week begins Saturday, March 5. It is one of the greatest chances you've ever had to own a better car. Thousands of fine cars—many of them guaranteed by dealers—are offered at prices far below trade-in values.

There are many sound reasons why it is to your advantage to buy now. The season is right—spring is just around the corner. The values are right—dealers have an unusually wide selection of good used cars. And the prices are remarkably low—way below those of several months ago.

Here's something else. Many of the cars in this National Used Car Exchange Week are 1937, 1936 and 1935 models with modern features that your old car doesn't have. For cars have improved greatly in the last few years. And this sale gives you the opportunity to have these improvements for very little money.

Better gasoline economy—smoother, more powerful engines—roomier bodies—big tires—big luggage compartments—dozens of worth-while conveniences that weren't even thought of when your old car was built.

Think how you'd enjoy a car like that after the old one! Safety is important, too, for every member of the family. If you're driving a car with an old-style body or unreliable brakes, this is your chance to switch to a safer, more modern car, for very little money. And it's good business to trade-in your old car before you run into a big repair bill.

BRING IN YOUR OLD CAR

DRIVE OUT A BETTER CAR

EASY TERMS

Your present car may cover the down-payment on the better car you want. Pay the balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale. See the classified pages of this newspaper. Visit the used car lot or showroom of any authorized automobile dealer during the week of March 5 to March 12. Get there as early as you can, while the selection is best.

One look at the cars and the prices in this big nation-wide sale will convince you that you can't afford to pass up this remarkable opportunity to DRIVE A BETTER, MORE MODERN CAR.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

I HEAR THAT: Pretty girls are being employed by some Boston collection agencies to replace the fuzzy-appearing individuals who have hitherto specialized in the trade . . . Attractive and well-dressed, the 1938 model debt-collectors find it easy to get admission to places of business . . . The Federal Building is equipped adequately with most appurtenances of modern business buildings. Except that the mail chutes, which could carry letters to the postoffice on the first floor, were not in the plans.

Former Governor's Councillor James H. Brennan will be a candidate for lieutenant-governor, and on the Republican ticket. Mayor Frank E. Lewis of Everett is considering the quest of the same job . . . Records have been removed already from the Haymarket Relief Station to City Hospital . . . Six of the sensational Bruins—Portland, Cowley, Clapper, Thompson, Pettinger and Goldsworthy—think that residence at the Hotel Brunswick is lucky.

From Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan magazine story: "Mark Hellinger has contributed a screenplay of the same title, 'Comet Over Broadway,' which Warner and Bette Davis are agreed is the Lowell-Newton girls' best part since 'Of Human Bondage' . . . Ah-Lee-Foo, erstwhile Blossom Chan, is suing a Boston night club charging breach of contract . . . Mrs. David J. Breen is seriously ill in New York . . . After Lent, John E. Hurley, secretary to Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, will listen to the Lohengrin March with Margaret Lee of Dorchester. . . .

NOT ENOUGH ALLEN:

Fred Allen, the Boston radio star, was joshing himself about the scarcity of the Allen art in the film, "Sally, Irene and Mary" . . . Many scenes in which the comedian appeared before the cameras apparently did not reach the screen . . . But Fred has an answer to that.

"The cutting-room floor," boasted Mr. Allen, "will probably win the academy award for acting."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

The newly-arrived son of Dr. Louis Schwartz of City Hospital will be called "Neal Jr." . . . Billy Walker, the Milton bowler-idol of Morton Downey, will be the star of St. Augustine's annual show . . . At liberty temporarily because of the blaze at The Southland, Blanche Galloway made it a Dunman's holiday" at Little Dixie by leading the band for nearly an hour . . . Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., has written former Representative Hyman Manevitch that the Roxbury politician and Mrs. Manevitch will be introduced to the President when they journey to Washington two weeks hence.

Contracts for a commanding electric sign to read "Francis F. Kelly for Governor" and to be displayed near Holyoke City Hall, have been given already to a Boston firm . . . A group of Roxbury and Dorchester citizens will call on Clerk of Court "Tony" McNulty of Dorchester Municipal Court to run for one of the major elective posts.

Hayes, Hague and Howe, the knockout comedians, give the new Penthouse show some real comedy-relief . . . Straight from left to right as they appear on the stage, then it's Howe, who contributes a remarkable surprise ending to a fast-moving ending of their act . . . First pearl-bearing oyster in stomach was reported by the way, by Otto, the suave headguest who won it (and didn't swallow it) . . . Outgoing superintendent of schoolhouse construction, William Drumsney, will be feted by his friends at the Copley-Plaza tonight.

The week beginning October 9, 1871, found Miss Gussie Grayston Harring and Mr. James Maxwell Harring and Mr. James Maxwell W. H. Lester and Mlle. Josephine Lassardi featured at the Howard Athenaeum now the Howard . . . And the highlight of the performance was the "celebrated tower scene" from "Il Trovatore" . . . An unusual situation at the courthouse saw a defendant named Joseph Sullivan being represented by Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Sullivan. Attorney John Concannon was the successful defense lawyer . . . Henry Van Wagner, of Newton, former Boston manager of one of the large cement companies, has been transferred and will move to New York . . . Former State Senator Redmond Fitzgerald, a strong Hurley man, the first guess is strongly on the line for the governor again . . . After giving a list of qualifications, girls planning on invading Hollywood should possess—one of those typical "Don't Come to Hollywood unless, etc." brochures—Busby Berkely, the dance director, who once lived in Somerville, ends up advising, "Don't come to Hollywood this year anyway."

Rains Ruin Sets for Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 3—Good day. We are in the midst of the worst rains and floods sunny California has ever had. This column is being written on a typewriter that may float out the window any moment and all anyone can talk of is the happenings of the storm.

From 20th Century-Fox comes word that the Scottish village erected for "Kidnaped" has been demolished and while it was only needed for two more days' shooting, the rebuilding will cost $20,000. Leo Carrillo's ranch house is threatened and his caretaker is frantic trying to reach Leo who is out of town and to get the horses and livestock to safety. Bob Burns and Eddie Cantor's bowling alley are completely surrounded by water in their mansion at the far end of Beverly Hills. Andy Lotus and Phil Harris are among those who have no lights nor gas and many are without telephones.

Louella O. Parsons

In contrast to the near tragedies it's a relief to hear some of lighter side. A prop whale made of wood and tin, used in "When Were You Born" at Warners, was torn loose from its moorings and is now at large in the usually bone dry Los Angeles river. Jimmy and Gertrude Ellison, unable to leave their Beverly Glen home, opened a relief station for all stalled motorists, ranging from the milkman to the banker. P. S.—Florida papers need not copy.

Douglas Fairbanks, close friend of the late Irving Thalberg, and the very first president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, has been selected to make the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award.

Andrea Leeds lands the coveted feminine lead in John Stahl's "A Letter of Introduction" at Universal. Any Stahl picture is important and this announcement is interesting because it means that Andrea moves one step higher on the ladder of fame.

A Line or Two. Reports current that John McCormack, famous Irish tenor, is being signed by Paramount to coach Olympe Bradna, whom they have hopes of making an important prima donna . . . "Jezebel," previewed in Glendale, brought forth actual cheers for Bette Davis. Speaking of Bette, reminds me that she and Harmon Nelson are sponsoring the musical education of 13-year-old Pamela Rascom and are taking her into their home to live with them.

Gene Towne and Graham Baker are at work at M-G-M on a sequel to "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang" for Mervin Leroy. The picture deals with the Alabama prison which allows its prisoners to go home for a week or ten days and then return to jail. Tentative title is "Give Me Ten Days."

Snapshots of Hollywood

CLARA BOW awaiting the stork, has been seriously ill with bronchitis; MICKEY ROONEY thatest cute, red-headed pal YON DELL DARR and doesn't care who knows it. The two kids were at the Olympic fights cheering and like mad; ROBERT WILCOX begging Universal for permission to box Bud Ia. one JOY HODGES and make up with her. All reports to the contrary no reconciliation has taken place.

WILLIAM POWELL, his friends will rejoice to know, is resting comfortably following his operation; JEAN MUIR making personal appearances in Ireland and going very big. We understand CARL LY and BEVERLY BEMIS, dance team, are on their way to New York to make a short for Warner Brothers. They will be featured with FIFI DORSAY; wonder just how serious the ANITA LOUISE-BOB ABBOTT romance is. ANITA is so pretty it is easy to understand why young ABBOTT is crazy about her. That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Held Over

Andrea Leeds has one of the leading roles in "The Goldwyn Follies" which has been held over for a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum.

Goldwyn Hit Held at Loew's

Samuel Goldwyn's stunning Technicolor musical, "The Goldwyn Follies," is being held over for a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

This opulent film musical, first entertainment in Goldwyn's 25 years of picture-making to carry his name, has a parade of stars headed by Adolphe Menjou, the Ritz Brothers, Andre Leeds, Ella Logan, Jerome Cowan, radio's Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen, Phil Baker, Kenny Baker, grand opera's Helen Jepson and Charles Kullman, the beautiful ballerina Zorina, George Balanchine's American Ballet, the musical stage's popular comedian, Bobby Clark, and the gorgeous Goldwyn Girls.

Robert Benchley's latest short comedy, "A Night at the Movies," is an added feature on the twin houses' screen programs.

World Events In Newsreel

A surprise visit by King George VI to closely-guarded Woolwich Arsenal to view the progress of British rearmament, features today's release of News of the Day. Newsreel patrons are also shown an air raid drill by the famed Grenadier Guards as well as a tiger submarine launching by the Royal Navy.

Results of a record rampage by the Red River in Arkansas are shown. Levees are smashed, dozens of towns inundated and a lake, eight miles wide, is formed.

News of the Day recalls in its issue highlights in the career of Jerry of General Pershing. There are snapshots of the opening of New Orleans' celebrated Mardi Gras.

Disney Hit In Fourth Week

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's first full-length feature in multiplane technicolor, enters its fourth and final week at Keith-Memorial today, along with the sparkling stage revue, "Rhapsody in Rhythm."

Minus glamour-girls and boys, this animated cartoon has become the country's box-office attraction No. 1. Surprisingly, it is not the lovely Snow White, but homely little Dopey, youngest of the seven dwarfs, and "the nasty old witch" who are the favorites of the thousands of children who have viewed the picture at the Keith Memorial.

This delightful Grimm fairy-tale is followed closely in the film, and anybody who has ever read it or had it read to them as children (and who hasn't?) will respond to the tender love story between Snow White and her Prince Charming, which finds happy fulfillment despite the evil machinations of the wicked queen.

Al Bernie, mimic and impersonator, tops the stage revue. He is assisted by George Campos, France's popular comedian; Vic Hyde, one-man swing band, Rosemary Deering, feminine danseuse, and the 16 Dancing Sophisticates.

Dionne Feature At Boston

Hailed as the most entertaining topical record of the famous Dionne Quintuplets ever taken, "Quintupland," a two-reel RKO-Pathe featurette will be seen at the Boston theater the entire week, beginning today, in addition to Phillis Brooks and Ricardo Cortez in "City Girl" and "Maid's Night Out" with Joan Fontaine and Allan Lane.

It shows the five little girls at their interesting age of going on four years, active and blooming with health amid the snows of remote Callander, Ontario.

It shows them, for example, each in identical costumes of white furs, tobogganing down a 15-foot slide in their playground, playing at skiing, shoveling snow, all in a temperature of 20 below zero, and loving it. Interesting scenes show them at meals, at games, singing in chorus, and as an audience of their first motion picture show, "Mickey Mouse."

Dr. Dafoe and his activities also have space in this interesting chronicle, which reveals that the earning of the children amounts to about $200,000 a year; that they weigh now 35 pounds in weight, and are each a little over three feet tall.

Modern Art Exhibit Attracts Many to Museum Tea

By BETTY ALDEN

THE TEA and private viewing of a new exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art yesterday afternoon gave us quite a lift . . . and it wasn't only because of the spring-like weather . . .

Many times we have stood in front of so-called "Modernistic" and "Surrealist" paintings in art galleries . . . and examined them carefully, trying to discover what they were all about and why they were worth being hung in an art exhibition . . .

MRS. ROBERT HOLLINS

It usually made us feel a little depressed, for no matter how long we studied them they seemed, to our untutored eye, to be on a par with the crayon scribblings a five-year-old brings proudly home from kindergarten to show his mother . . . and yet highly trained art experts and critics had approved of these paintings and discriminating collectors were willing to spend hundreds, and sometimes even thousands of dollars for them . . .

We can see beauty in well executed paintings of landscapes, portraits and all sorts of subjects including the classic . . . but had about decided we were too old-fashioned or a bit stupid until yesterday . . . when, just by chance, we learned that quite a few of the members of the Museum of Modern Art can see nothing in the freakish modern works and don't like them any better than we do . . .

In the gallery yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine of Weston exclaimed, "I think they're terrible," to a group of her friends who were standing off at a distance regarding several of the typically "modern" canvasses, which are part of the Museum's permanent collection . . .

Mrs. Paine gave us an idea so we stood by one of the paintings and listened to comments of the various members as they strolled up to examine it . . . To our surprise practically everyone frankly disapproved of its crude rendition and brush work and even such connoisseurs of art as Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes, whose husband is the head of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and Nathaniel Saltonstall, president of the Museum of Modern Art's Boston branch, looked at it with baffled expressions on their faces . . . while Bill Read, who is also well versed on the technicalities of painting, remarked "If you can make anything out of that, you're a better man than I am" . . .

Tea Served in New Lounge

PRACTICALLY all the museum's members dropped in sometime between four and six and even though baffled, everyone really enjoyed the fun of trying to decipher the paintings . . . The exhibition will be open to the public through March 25th . . . After friendly debates in the gallery as to the whys and wherefores of surrealism everyone welcomed a chance to sit down peacefully in the new cocktail lounge to enjoy a drink of some tea and sandwiches . . . Two Boston artists, Barbara Bradford, who is exhibiting a portrait of Priscilla Bramhall in the Junior League's current members' show, and Grace Collier sat side by side on one of the colorful red divans sipping tea as they discussed their hobbies . . . Mrs. Eugene Carver had a small party of friends at a nearby tea table and others in the throng of visitors were Natalie Winslow, Persis Mason, Mrs. Marc Peter, Jr., Mary Elizabeth Sears, Mrs. Raymond Holgate, Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake and Mrs. George Cushing . . .

A trio of debs, Ellen Moseley, Catherine Warner and Jean Halladay, who seldom miss an important art exhibit, were also in the fashionable group as were Mrs. Dunbar Lockwood with one of her junior-miss daughters who was brightly dressed in a coral tweed suit, Mrs. David Sigourney and Mrs. Lester de C. Hinds (Patricia Marshall Tate) . . .

Sunday dinners will be held early in many social households on March 6 in order to give music and dance lovers an opportunity to reach the Opera House in time for the first curtain of the performance of the Salzburg Opera Company . . .

Among the social leaders who have already ordered their tickets are Mrs. Harry B. Little, Mrs. Charles Jackson, Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. George R. Agassiz and Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs . . .

Still others who will view the performance from a good vantage point in the front rows are Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. James M. Newell, Mrs. Edgar Crocker, Miss Alice F. Tapley, Mrs. Robert L. O'Brien, Mrs. George A. Lyon, Mrs. Dudley Fay, Mrs. F. J. Whiting, Mrs. William Y. Peters and Mrs. John T. Coolidge, Jr. . . . Mr. Herbert Lyman and Mr. John B. Greene have also made reservations for the Sunday afternoon performance . . .

When the next social register comes off the presses you'll probably have to look under a different name for the listing of Anne Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman of Union Park . . .

Home Movies Feature of Dinner Party

THE PRESENT CRAZE for photography among wealthy socialites who can afford all the intricate and costly gadgets which help to make more technically perfect pictures, gives very enjoyable entertainment to many an after-dinner gathering . . . The other evening out in Chicago pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., of East Walpole were flashed on the screen in a reel of movies shown by Robert Hall McCormick . . .

Mr. McCormick gathered a bakers' dozen of his friends at his studio apartment for dinner and then ran off the movies, (many of which are in color) of his summer cruise in the Adriatic with Mr. and Mrs. Bird . . . Most of Mr. McCormick's guests already had tickets for Florida or other resorts in their pockets, so pictures of the beautiful Adriatic glistening in a warm summer sun only quickened their desire to get away on southern trips . . . rather than make them discontent with the long wait for the advent of real spring and summer weather . . .

According to plans which have already been completed for the marriage of Benjamin L. Young, Jr., of Weston to Ellenor Brigham Colgate of Flushing, N. Y., the wedding will be one of the leading fashionable events of Easter week in Gotham . . . St. John's Church in Flushing will be the scene of the ceremony, with a reception at the Oakland Country Club . . . Mrs. Robert L. Hollins, the former Lorraine Young, B. L.'s sister, will be one of the bridesmaids and the bridegroom's Boston friends will be well represented in the usher group.

Candidates for Most Charming Debutante

CLAIRE MORAN — KATHLEEN MORAN

Two sisters, Claire and Kathleen Moran, of Marlboro street are among the many pretty Boston society girls who are candidates for the honors of being selected the city's most charming debutante. They were photographed at the morning lecture of the Charlotte Cushman Club today. The contest will continue for three more Thursdays before selection of the winner.

Smartest Boston Debs Hunted in Contest

Boston's "400" already possessed of a reputation for ultra-smartness, today turned on practically as a body to chose the smartest members from its own ranks.

At a contest sponsored by the Charlotte Cushman Club, the socialites prepared to select the best dressed woman, the most charming debutante, the most socially correct and the smartest business women in Boston's blue book circles.

And when it came to style consciousness, there was hardly any improvement possible. Leading contenders in this class, where minks predominated, were the Moran sisters, Claire and Kathleen, who are sure to score heavily for the title of "best dressed."

CEEK CAREER WOMAN

As to career women, Boston society has them and several were in attendance at the lecture series at the Marlboro street theatrical club.

Rebekah Hobbs, known for her association with the Theater Guild was there vieing for the honor of Boston's "smartest business woman", so was Sybil Harrington of Brewster, who has interests in the publishing business.

The debutantes have not been left out in this contest. Betty Scudder of Brookline and Phyllis Childs of Lexington showed interest in the title of of Boston's "most charming debutante."

EDES SPEAKS

The final decision will be rendered on March 24, the last Thursday lecture of the series.

Today's guest speaker was Arthur Edes. He spoke on "The Radio demands Good Theater, too."

Gold IS WHERE YOU FIND IT

From the Novel by Clements Ripley

CHAPTER 32

Most of the girls at Fanny Brown's had bought Golden Moon but Mr. Crouch had been generous. Every girl found herself with a hundred more shares. The Sacramento Union said it was worth ten cents a share. Mr. Crouch was a splendidly generous gentleman.

That evening, when the plush-and-gilt rooms filled up, there was curious tension. Nor were the country legislators, out to see life, left long in doubt. The Golden Moon, they learned, was about to be ruined by some dizzy farmers' bill against mining that was coming up tomorrow. A lot of the girls had put their own savings in the Golden Moon.

A lot of legislators had put their compensation and more into Golden Moon, too. Several of the more conscientious ones voted in favor of the ranchers' bill next day though.

Keenan himself didn't know just what had happened. Nobody, he was sure, had been bribed. But the valley ranchers' bill was dead.

Serena couldn't have said that she was exactly unhappy. She had been living in Uncle Ralph's house a month now. Aunt Rosanne had borne her off triumphantly the first day. "And, Ralph!" she had caroled breathlessly, "I found her living in the filthiest little hotel!"

"Aunt Rosanne! It wasn't! It was clean—and the hotel people were so nice—"

"I suppose—" Uncle Ralph bit his mustache—"I suppose you wouldn't go back to Bannockburn? Well—I see how you feel. How Virginius came to—but, look here, child, you'll quit this job, of course. Come and live with us."

Serena's eyes widened. "But it's—it's my work! And Mr. Hieman depends on me."

No. Serena couldn't have said she was exactly unhappy. Not like the day she had left home . . . Or like the day her father had told her that he had bought Jared off. You could always trade with a Yankee, he had said. She believed it, too, now she had seen Jared beauing Aunt Rosanne around.

But even seeing that, you couldn't keep up that spent, choking misery. Even that had to pass. Oh, why did everything have to come back to Jared? She hated Jared!

No, she didn't bother to hate him. But she wished she could go back to Jackson street, where she wouldn't have to see him. Not that he bothered her any more, the way he had at first.

Oh, if he didn't buzz and buss so around Aunt Rosanne!

She ought to be happy. Aunt Rosanne was sweet and the house was lovely!

No, she wasn't unhappy—she just cradled her hard young body in pink softness and yearned for her room on Jackson street.

Uncle Ralph wouldn't hear to that! And Serena was almost sorry for him—he looked so harassed.

Ralph did look harassed these days. There were few people to whom he could talk freely, but he did sometimes open up to his father-in-law, old Slippery Harry McCoy.

"The fact is," he told him uneasily, "I don't like the look of things. The Federal suit's a test case, and the valley crowd are pushin' it hard.

"Beat 'em once in court," McCoy reminded them.

RALPH'S FEAR

"That was the State Court. We could move dere dirt there. And you can't handle a Federal Court like you can a bunch of legislators. My brother Virginius is in this suit to the neck, and I know 'Gin. He is a mean fighter!"

Ralph's mouth tightened. "He's managed to get him some money some way. Not much, but it don't take much to make 'Gin dangerous. I wish I knew where he got it from!"

Lord Dunquirke, in checked tweeds and a deer-stalker hat, had come out to the States with a naive purpose of buying the Rocky Mountains for a deer-park sort of thing.

By the time Rosanne captured him for dinner he had got over dining in a flannel shirt, under the impression he was in the wilds.

Rosanne fluttered over the place cards. Lord Dunquirke on her right, of course. That would put Serena next to Jared. She considered, lips a trifle tightened. "Oh, well —"

It was the nearest Jared had come to having Serena to himself in a long time. Under cover of the talk he questioned her. "What's going on, youngster? Used to be good friends. What's the matter now?"

"WHAT YOU WANTED"

Serena thrilled suddenly—and was furious at herself for thrilling. This Yankee who had sold her! "Why, really, I don't understand." She smiled again, brightly. "I hear you're making a lot of money; I'm so glad—that was what you wanted, wasn't it?" Jared flushed.

There were white spots at the corners of Rosanne's mouth when she talked to Serena later. Couldn't she manage to be a little less jeune-fille? At her age?

"Honestly, Serena, you're not in any more—you're nearly 20! And—and another thing! It isn't a bit of use your being coy with Jared Whitney. He puts his affections where money is."

Serena still had her temper, but the last two years had given her dignity. "Yes, Aunt Rosanne," she said.

She walked out. She waited outside the smoking-room door, until she was sure she could handle herself. She knocked.

"Can I speak to you a minute, Uncle Ralph? Alone?" He spoke back into the room: "Wait for me, Whitney. Why, child, what's on your mind?"

SERENA'S REQUEST

Serena spoke breathlessly. "I want to go back to Jackson street, Uncle Ralph, tomorrow; No, please . . . I've loved it here and you've been sweet to me. But I'm sure I've stayed long enough and I know Aunt Rosanne thinks so."

He drew her into the drawing-room, opposite.

"Now, what is it, child? You've been having some little spat with Rosanne, maybe?" He walked up and down.

"Honey, I'll tell you something. I'm not doing you a favor, I'm making one. The fact is, I'm in line for the United States Senate! You don't know how things count in politics. Now you know I'm—well, kind of at outs with yo' daddy.

"Now suppose they get sayin'—don't matter if it's true or not—suppose they get sayin', 'Here's Ralph Ferris, took such a hate to his own brother on account of this minin' fuss, he lets his own niece go live in some place down on Jackson street.' Honey, don't you see what that might do?"

"Why—of course, Uncle Ralph!" She was suddenly proud and happy to be able to do this small thing for him.

"Look here—I don't know what you said to Serena, and I don't care. But she's here, my girl, and she is going to stay here. And you're going to be nice to her—you hear me?"

"You Ferrises! Anything that's Ferris! Let me tell you, there are just as good people in California as ever came out of Mississippi! What's more, I think old Virginius was darned lucky to get somebody attractive!

'It's in the Stars---' the Horoscope Frock

FASHION INFLUENCES for the younger set are striking out into more imaginative fields, for a change. It's been all too long that a certain little movie prodigy has queened it among juvenile stylists. Now the trend is to the stars, but not of Hollywood. "Calendar clothes" have hit our town, and they are quite as fascinating as reading your own horoscope. As a matter of fact, the motif of the frock should match the sign of the zodiac of the young owner's birth month. And attached to each frock is a tag which entitles the wearer to her horoscope! They're big and little sister size, from three to six years and from seven to fourteen. The jumpers are of shantung with sheer white striped blouses. Little sister's frock is fitted with pockets concealed in the side panels. And big sister's dress has a belt from the front panels to tie in the waistline smartly. Both size groups are around two dollars! For shopping details, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, weekdays until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Something New In Banana Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

The banana is such a good and generous friend it will take off its skin for you! But now it's newest to serve it right in the skin, or at least most of it—"Banana on the half-shell."

You have eaten oysters and clams and crabs from their shells: you have enjoyed strawberries with their green hats on, melon-balls from the shell and other fruits served "au naturel." But you haven't had the last word until you've tried appealing bananas in the peel.

To prepare a banana for "B-Natural" serving, strip one section of the peeling entirely off. Then lay your banana with one section showing, on the serving plate. With a sharp knife divide the pulp into even slices.

Add a bit of garnish, say a sprig of mint, and serve immediately. If you are going to prepare your banana ahead of time, sprinkle it with orange or lemon juice, or with canned pineapple or grapefruit juice, to prevent discoloration.

WHEN TO SERVE THEM

Bananas on the half shell are sometimes served as a first course, with lemon sliced, especially popular at breakfast. They are an attractive dessert-service, too—a smart way to serve a simple, healthful food. If you like, bring in cream and sugar and little dishes and let each guest eat his banana, "plain" or combine it with the cream and sugar. For between-times this half-shell service is perfect with a big glass of foamy milk (the children like the cunning slices and the shell). If you want to be really different, you may even serve your banana in this way for salad, adding some greens to the plate and passing dressing; the half-shell idea is attractive, too, for those "clean plate" salads arranged high with little groups of various fruits.

Banana slices, in or out of the shell, are always delicious and always available, right from the fruit bowl, for emergency occasions. If it's recipes you want, you will appreciate these chosen for emergency use and quick-as-a-wink service.

5-MINUTE SALAD

Erase Falling Hair Worries

Don't worry if your hair is falling a little bit. A hair shaft lives from two to seven years, some are bound to fluff away each day. But if the growth continues to get thinner, you are moulting faster than you should.

In that event you must massage your scalp every night, apply mineral oil the night before the shampoo, vitalize scalp and shafts by vigorous brushing.

If you have thin, silky hair, don't have the vinegar rinse after the shampoo. It will make the hair even softer.

The finger wave won't last as well as if the acid rinsing hadn't been a part of the beauty ritual.

Girls! Write for Booklet

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I want all young women who wish to entertain their boy friends in their own homes to write me today.

I've a wonderful menu for them. It's so tempting, so truly good, so easily prepared that I want every girl reader of this column to try it.

Preparing a good meal and serving it to a young man is not only the simplest but the SUREST way to capture the proposal that leads to matrimony.

I know. I have received at least 5000 letters in the past 10 years that testify to that fact.

But about the menu — it's yours for the asking. Just send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and the attractive booklet will be on its way to your home.

Follow my directions and I'll bet that your next letter will include a request for instructions on how to have the most attractive wedding without putting too great a strain on the family pocketbook.

And now, here's my mail bag for today:

SHALL HE MARRY?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am the adopted son of a wealthy family. For several years, my mother has planned to have me marry the daughter of a good friend of hers, and I realize this girl would make me a fine wife.

However, for more than three years I have been very fond of a dependent of my mother, and now this friendship has turned to love.

I owe my family much more than I can ever hope to repay them, and although I feel that they would accept the girl I love, it would be a terrific disappointment to them.

My adoptive father has planned to take me in business with him, so I shall probably be able to get along.

How much do I owe my family?

Should I marry the girl they hope I will make my wife, or the girl of my choice? LEE.

MY DEAR LEE:

No one, no matter how great are his obligations, is obliged to saddle himself with a wife he does not love. But I'm wondering if yours is not a case of fascination due to propinquity.

Before deciding on this marriage, which would certainly not be an ambitious one for you, would it not be well for you and this young lady to have separate domiciles?

You see, I'm not giving your letter in its entirety.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

An Extremely Lucky Grand Slam

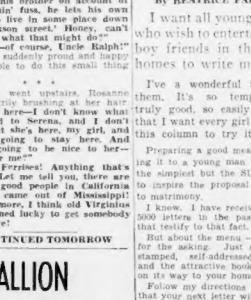
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The lamentable fact that justice, if not blind, is at best near-sighted leads to many an undeserved windfall at the bridge table.

It sometimes appears as though bad hands are rewarded and good hands penalized.

This, however, is illusory—in the long run, old man "law of averages" catches up with the culprits.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
6♣	Pass	7♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's jump to six clubs over four spades was the sort of bid that is typical of the "selfish" player. After South's tremendous jump to four spades North knew very well that his own ace and one spade were more than adequate support, and that he should have persisted with his own suit to the level of six was nothing short of atrocious, particularly since his own suit was a minor and since he was playing match-point duplicate.

Apparently, when South went on to six spades, North changed his mind and abruptly decided quite unwarrantedly, to support spades to a grand slam. That he had been guilty of trapping his own partner never would have occurred to North.

WEST'S GOOD LUCK

West, shrewdly realizing that South was probably void of clubs, did not make the mistake of opening the ace—he chose the heart king instead. Unfortunately, from East's point of view, this lead was equally futile. Declarer won and ruffed a heart, then led the club king through East.

When East failed to put up the ace, South decided that East didn't have it, so declarer ruffed the club and ruffed another heart with the spade ace, then ruffed a second club, and ran off every trump. Upon leading the last trump South still had the A-10 of diamonds and a long heart. West had the club ace and queen and two diamonds.

On the trump lead West had to let go a diamond, and dummy then discarded its last club, keeping the K-J-4 of diamonds. Declarer then cashed the ace of diamonds and led the ten toward dummy. West's queen appeared, and made the grand slam a lay-down.

North probably congratulated himself on his own "splendid bidding." But if West had had the inspiration to open a trump, or if East had had the diamond queen, North would have had no chance to be complacent.

Watch Hands In the Winter

Cold weather is tough on hands. Frequent washings rob them of the natural oil, they get chapped, feel starched and horrid.

Use toilet lanoline at bedtime, working it into the flesh, paying special attention to the knuckles and the cuticle about the finger nails. Next morning hands will be young and pretty again.

Proportion's The Thing

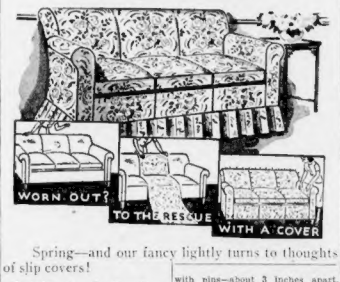
A few extra pounds of flesh may be becoming to a woman, and it's senseless for her to start on a reducing campaign. Proportion is the thing, rather than weights and measurements.

The best insurance against figure defects is exercise plus good posture. When the body is not carried splendidly, muscles lose tone, invite fat cells to come along and stay a while.

Have you the habit of standing with most of your weight on one foot? Don't do that, pretty one. You'll put curves in your back bone where curves should not be. In course of time one hip will be higher than the other.

When standing, tuck in your tummy. Pack it against your back bone. Pull yourself up at the waistline, keep the legs straight. No need of lifting your chest; if you keep the abdominal muscles tight and flat, the chest will take care of itself.

GAY SLIP COVERS



Spring—and our fancy lightly turns to thoughts of slip covers!

Imagine the floral cretonne cover in our picture transforming your shabby but faithful sofa.

A clever idea, too, to finish the seams smartly with bias binding and to complete your color scheme by slipping a smaller chair in plain emerald green, another in yellow.

And now to the making—which is so much easier than you'd think.

First, smooth your material neatly over the upholstery—right side up if you're going to bind your seams. Center the design on seat and back so each panel of the sofa will look the same.

As you fit each section snugly in place, anchor it to the upholstery with pins—about 3 inches apart. Cut 1½ inches outside pins.

Then baste, try on and sew the seams on the right side. Trim edges neatly and cover with the binding. The box-pleated ruffle? You attach that as the last finishing touch.

Complete step-by-step directions and diagrams for slip covers of all kinds are given in our 40-page booklet, Making Slip Covers Successfully. How to estimate, cut, fit, sew. Tips on materials, trimmings.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, Making Slip Covers Successfully, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 17th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

GIRL About TOWN

Although she doesn't terrify, Dr. George B. Franklin is a lecturer. He is professor of English at the B. U. College of Business Administration, and an authority on vocabulary. He believes the spoken language of Americans is getting better all the time.

Admitting some slang is artificial and silly, he maintains that other words that creep into the language are as picturesque and full of action as the words coined in Shakespeare's day. He specifies such expressions as speakeasy . . . doubleerma . . . daylight-saving-time . . . streamlined . . . knee action . . . go-getter . . . get away . . . and never-say-die. Some of these words are quite respectable. Technical words such as radio, free-wheeling, broadcast and democracy are definitely accepted. Others such as dumbbell, gangster and Lossie to seem to be on probation.

On such words as mortician and beautician, he passes no verdict. He does point out that there represent an effort to "elevate" the language. In the creation of other new words for certain callings, some of the words used have gone rather far afield in an attempt to be "re- . . . [illegible]

Grove Talks Quail To Unwilling Red Sox Ears

SARASOTA, FLA., MARCH 3—THE EVENings are long and lazy in Florida. The hardwood rockers on the hotel portico are few and at a premium to the long distance Red Sox sitters.

AUSTEN LAKE

Early occupants will sit watching the sun go down and, after that, the stars. Later-comers must content themselves on the stone ledge, dangling their feet and curling their spines.

Joe Cronin, Herb Pennock, Jack Wilson, Moe Berg and young Dick Midkiff sat on the chairs last evening, first of the Red Sox camp, chatting in random bursts until Lefty Grove clattered through the door-screens and swept his eye over the scene. The conversation continued in quiet murmurs, with Midkiff, the recruit pitcher, taking no part.

"Any of you ever shoot p'triches, more 'r less?" demanded Grove, clearly bursting with a tale to tell.

"The hardest ground balls to judge," said Cronin hastily, in his baritone drawl, "are the ones that come at you head on. You can't measure the hops as you can when they come to one side or t'uther.

"I'll bet 90 percent of a shortstop's errors are on ground balls where he doesn't have to move out of his tracks."

"I was up in the hills near Cumberland last November," insisted Lefty, sticking his chin into the group, "an' I had my 12-gauge shot gun . . .

Lefty Uses Head in Pinch

"YEH, IN HOT WEATHER," boomed Pennock, "the skin part of the diamond sinks as it bakes, and you get a little shelf where the grass stops. Sometimes those balls hop up and bite you on the jaw."

"Any of you fellers ever play in the Blue Ridge League?" snapped Lefty with a shrewd leer

"No," said Wilson. "Why?"

"Well, that league's located in good huntin' country," blurted Grove in a headlong rush. "I was gunnin' for birds last . . ."

"If the pitcher's mound is a turtle back," interjected Cronin hastily, "grounders often carom off at an angle and catch you going the other way.

"Cleveland and the White Sox have mounds like the dome of the Boston State House, and you gotta play grounders through the box like billiards."

"How's your new knuckle ball?" asked Pennock of Wilson. "I saw you giving it a workout last September, and you had Berg dizzy."

"The wind was blowing toward him," alibied Berg, "it made the ball dance."

Fact is that Wilson, in his natural growth as [illegible] Sox pitcher, [illegible] a portent [illegible] Lefty [illegible] Grove [illegible] saw that one [illegible] of an act [illegible]

"Trouble with the knuckler is you never know where it's going," mused Wilson. "It may hit the wrong air current and slide away from the plate. It's no ball for the pinch."

"It's a good two-and-nuthin' ball," said Pennock. "A nice tool to have in any pitcher's kit"

"Wilson here throws the lightest ball I ever caught," said Berg, who has a paternal pride in the chunky youth whom he has schooled through the years "It hits your glove like a feather He can cut loose some that look like they had whiskers on 'em, but they land soft as a baby's kiss."

Lefty Brings the Ducks to Midkiff

THE SCREEN DOORS banged violently apart, and Pennock strode back to the antlers.

"A phoney telephone call, huh!" he announced, fixing Grove with a hard eye and snatching at his lapels.

"Not me," denied the lanky left hander, obviously tickled with his strategem. "All I got is quail on my mind, and I will tell you guys about . . ."

"This 'Boob' McNair heaves the heaviest ball on the club," interrupted Cronin. "Lots of natural power for a little guy, but that isn't the reason it's the difference in the span.

"A natural overhand-thrower like Higgins gets a cushion of air in front of the ball that makes a buffer when it hits. But these sidearm jaspers throw balls that hit like a hunk of rock

"Speakin' of rocks . . ." said Lefty.

This John Peacock is going to make you a good catcher," hastened Berg. "He's learned how to fix his feet. Watch how he holds his meat hand tomorrow. Fingers curled and not taking any chances on a busted joint."

"Meanest job in baseball, this catching batting practice," said Pennock. "A green kid can split a finger and be out of the picture before he gets started.

"I always tell these young fellows, 'put that bare hand in your hip pocket and do the job with your glove alone' Busted fingers are nothing now that they used to be"

Buying Support Enters Market After Early Dip

Bank Clearings Drop 26.5 Per Cent

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities for the week ended March 2 registered the 16th consecutive decline under the comparable 1937 week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Turnover for the latest period amounted to $5,222,478,000, a loss of 26.5 per cent from $1,109,623,000 in the like 1937 week. The preceding week showed a drop of 22 per cent from its 1937 comparative.

Clearings for the March 2 week were $1,420,261,000 above the five-day period preceding.

Aggregate at New York declined to $2,350,668,000 from $3,275,000 last year, a drop of 20.8 per cent. Clearings at outside centers amounted to $2,016,810,000, a decline of 29.5 per cent under the $2,536,348,000 in the comparable 1937 week.

An advance of 1 per cent over a year ago at Dallas was the only increase listed for any of the 22 cities. Prominent percentage decreases included: New Orleans 22.1 per cent; Detroit, 22.4; Boston, 28.8; Louisville, 28; Pittsburgh, 25; Cleveland, 23.9; Seattle, 22, and Omaha, 21.9.

Turnover of $304,700,000 at Chicago was 19 per cent under $376,200,000 last year.

Declines In Majority At Close

NEW YORK, March 3—Light buying support entered the stock market today after a slippery start and early losses running to a point or more were pared or cancelled.

The dips and recoveries were slow, however, although the activity was slightly better than in yesterday's dragging session. Moderate declines were in the majority around the close.

INTEREST LACKING

Lack of interest, rather than depressed sentiment, brokers said, accounted mainly for the sliding tendencies exhibited by the list in the morning.

Most traders apparently saw few business recovery signs and were deferring the buying powder dry pending the interstate commerce freight rate decision and more definite indications of just how far Congress would go in revising the much-disputed tax laws.

Individual commodities were uneven, providing few clues for stock trends. Foreign securities markets were indifferent.

On the downward slant the greater part of the day—some ranged against marks later—were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, J. I. Case, International Harvester, American Telephone, Western Union, North American, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Philip Morris, U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide and National Supply.

U. S. RUBBER IMPROVES

U. S. Rubber gave ground at the opening, but subsequently improved, following announcement of the company's re-capitalization plans involving $45,000,000 in new bonds chiefly for retiring the existing issue.

Anaconda, Kennecott and other copper shares were among the first to come back. These were aided by a small boost in the price of the metal.

Resistant were duPont, St. Joseph Lead, Allis Chalmers, Southern Pacific and Johns-Manville.

Some confusion was seen in the report of the Federal Reserve Administrator that home financing was climbing steadily, and the statement of Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of U. S. Gypsum that he saw no real chance of building revival this year and could see a 60 per cent drop in the company's business in January.

Reports of a private sale of estate holdings of 28,600 shares of Union Carbide 1½ points under last night's close were a chilling influence on that stock.

TIMELY TOPICS

Market analysts found further confirmatory evidence of the lengthy business slide in the Dun & Bradstreet figures on bank clearings for the week ended Wednesday. These disclosed the sixteenth decline under the comparable 1937 period. The total showed a loss of 26.5 per cent. The previous last week's freight loadings placed the aggregate at approximately 512,000 cars, which would be a more than seasonal decrease.

Recent slackness of stock dealings was amplified by the official exchange report revealing members' collateral borrowings in March were down more than $10,000,000 from February.

At the beginning of foreign currency quotations these were more than up 50% of a cent at 3.26 cents. Sterling was off 1-16 of a cent at $5.01 13-16.

'Adequate Rates' For Rails Urged

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—Fairman R. Dick, New York, an investment banker and authority on railroads, told a gathering of savings bankers today railroads must be permitted to charge "adequate rates" for their service as the alternative to government ownership and support through general taxation.

Speaking at the opening of the spring savings conference of the Savings Bankers' Association, Dick said the forces depressing railroad earnings were beyond control of management.

4 Fields Open For New Paid President

By LESLIE GOULD

International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, March 3—In picking the new paid president, four fields are open to the New York Stock Exchange:

1—Educational.

2—Industrial.

3—Political.

4—Wall Street, which includes members of the Stock Exchange and partners in the leading brokerage firms.

And there are at least two candidates for the job on the various "lists" from each of those categories.

Of these four groupings, one, curiously, is given little serious consideration. That is No. 4—Wall Street. And this is strange in view of the earlier fuss over whether the paid president should be a member of the Exchange or a partner in a stock exchange house.

MAY ATTEMPT COUP

There are, of course, a few bitenders in the old guard camp who favor to keeping the plum for the home folks, and it may be that they will attempt some sort of a coup. But this is doubted. There would be too much Washington and public reaction, and then some of the boys on the floor, exchange floor who are having tough financial sledding are cooling off on their lobby to the capitol idea. Hunger is a great liberalizer.

There are several candidates from the political field, but this writer feels it would be an error to pick a politician. That would be too much like when the important thing for the stock exchange is not so much currying political favor but getting back public support.

If the stock exchange can convince the public through this new paid president and reorganizing of its management that there has been a change, and that the public can and will get a fair break there, then it will have accomplished its purpose. It will not have to worry about Washington.

Hiring one of Wall street's own or a politician for the job would not convince the public. The latter would be considered some form of "fix" while the former would be taken as a challenge to its critics.

All of which narrows the choice to the fields of industry and education.

DIFFICULT JOB

It is going to be difficult to get the right man—one who has the proper grasp of public and political relations as well as administrative ability.

To compete with industry for one of its bright and coming young men the exchange will have to offer dazzling financial remuneration. The talk now is of a salary of $50,000 or $60,000 a year, which would not be very big bait for a man on his way up in industry. It certainly would not tempt such an individual as General Motors' able Harlow Curtice, or Ford's able Charles Sorensen, either of whom may well head G. M., or others of his class.

It would be just as well not to make a change if the exchange is to get a second later.

The right man is willing to get as high as $100,000 or $150,000 then it can have his pick in any of the fields. And if the exchange gets the right man, that would be a cheap price to re-establish itself in the sun.

In the field of education, $50,000 to $60,000 is heavy sugar. So that may be the proper place to look. Then, of course, is the new governing board to decide. And it has not been picked yet.

Building Awards Up in February

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—Major engineering construction awards for the month of February amounted to $218,801,000, the highest for any February since 1929, the Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private construction for the month was 11 per cent above January but 15 per cent below February a year ago, when the Pennsylvania electrification program contract was awarded. Public construction was 15 per cent above January and 44 per cent above February 1937, due largely to the $34,000,000 Fiorello La Guardia completion of the high dam at Grand Coulee.

Increased Volume In Top Futures

During February, transactions on New York Wool Top Exchange are estimated to have involved 16,310,000 pounds of tops, equivalent to about 52,600,000 pounds of grease wool, it is estimated by A. W. Hilliard & Son. Each single transaction is counted as both a purchase and a sale.

This volume compared with 9,710,000 pounds of top equal to 32,300,000 pounds of grease wool traded in January and with 2,530,000 pounds of top equal to 8,400,000 pounds of grease wool traded in February, 1937.

Maladjustments Are Now Being Corrected

Failure of New Deal Is Recognized, Says Haney

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, March 3 — The usual signs that economic maladjustments are on the edge of being corrected, are appearing. It is always so in the depression phases of business cycles.

For example, every day we read how some corporation is cutting the salaries of its officers and office help. At the same time, we read that working time is being reduced, so that laborers earn less per week. In some cases, hours are being staggered to spread employment.

What this means is that we are at the point where we go through the wringer, or we don't.

In this end, this country (and the rest of the world, too) will have to pay for the New Deal and the rest of its economic foolishness. We can't have "booms" and spending sprees without later liquidation of debts and reorganization. But I do not think that we will be forced to make the final settlement yet.

My reasoning about the matter runs as follows:

First, I believe that a majority of the people of this country now recognize the failure of the New Deal as an economic system. Since it has not brought employment and prosperity it cannot be accepted as an economic program for recovery. This means that private enterprise will now be given a better chance than it has had in several long years.

Second, however, the extreme idealists and wish thinkers among us (including some business men) have not yet been sufficiently disillusioned to wake up. Consequently something unsound will be done in the hope that we can avoid the inevitable corrections and liquidations.

Some way will be found to have "inflation," and at the same time allow "business confidence" to be restored.

Just now we are back in the old spot where the usual howls are arising.

Again we are hearing the argument that what we need is "more currency."

We will soon be hearing that there is not enough spending, and that what has caused this "oversavings."

Then, along with pleas for issuing more "money," will come the make-work arguments. We will be told that what is needed is shorter working hours, and that "the government" should create jobs.

Of course, the old bogey of "technological unemployment" will be trotted out.

Already I have received a letter suggesting that some one may try to revive the Townsend plan.

But it seems to me that these schemes are not apt to get much of a following just now. We have been through so much of that sort of thing under the New Deal, that we want something more different—in appearance. Nor does the voice of the demagogue sound as sweet as of yore. The present low estate of Fr. Coughlin as an economist, is a case in point.

Most people can see that we have as big a total supply of so-called money as we had in boom times. They wonder, therefore, why we should have more. And they realize that what is needed is a chance for the individuals to make use of the already abundant supply.

So, unless foreign conditions get a good deal worse, I expect that means will be found to put the swollen bank deposits and excess reserves to work. The only way to do that is to show the average man that he is not Little Red Riding Hood, and that the utility business is not the grandmother.

This can be done. Probably it will be done. And in that case, it will be done before next November, when important elections will occur.

Retail Auto Sales Off Sharply

The preliminary adjusted index figure of the value of retail sales of new passenger automobiles declined sharply from December to January, according to reports to the Department of Commerce.

This index, which makes allowance for seasonal movements, was 64½ in January on the basis of 1929-31 as 100, compared with 78 in December and 89 in November. In January last year the index was 129½ and in January, 1936, 102.

Sense of Humor Is Invaluable

Many Who Lack It, Says Forbes, Take a Defeatist Attitude

By B. C. FORBES

A sense of humor is a priceless asset in these searing times. My minglings with men of affairs reveal that many of those who lack humor have been and are disposed to take a defeatist attitude,

"What's the use?" they ask, and proceed dolefully to enumerate a long roll of discouragements, particularly political discouragements, including the enormous proportion of their income they are compelled to hand over to the government in income taxes. Corporation taxes, too, painfully depress them.

On the other hand, among executives whose philosophy is salted with humor, admission that many phases of our national situation are discouraging usually supplemented by some such observation as:

"However, things will right themselves by and by."

"THIS, TOO, WILL PASS"

My cross-roads country schoolmaster, a philosophic genius, used to quote, when things weren't going well, the biblical pronouncement, "This, too, will pass." And it always did.

As I recall, it was Joseph Chamberlain, eminent British statesman, who declared that Britain often reached the very precipice of disaster, but always drew back in time and finally, managed to "muddle through."

A growing number of American business men are reaching the conclusion that, after having reached perilously near the brink of disaster, this country is recoiling and is determined to avoid catastrophe.

That appreciation of the value of a sense of humor still persists is reflected by the "annual report for 1937" now being circulated "to stockholders" by one unnamed company. Here are extracts:

"Your directors, estimating their confusion as 80 per cent ahead of 1936, submit the following report for 1937:

"Earnings: We are as much at sea about earnings as you are, owing to the fact that none of the company officials has been able to determine with any degree of certainty what the corporation owes the Government in taxes, levies, assessments, penalties, etc.

"For the first four months our business was unmistakably booming. The second four months went by before we could believe things were slipping. The last four months were spent by the corporation officials blaming one another for not noticing the reversal sooner.

OPERATING COSTS

"Operating costs: Operating costs reached a new all-time high, largely due to the expenses involved in ascertaining what the corporation was permitted to do, under what commission it was permitted to do it, and for how long. Due to the general confusion on these points, it was necessary to build an entire new wing to house the greatly enlarged legal staff. The corporation shows a 35 per cent increase in lawyers retained.

"Expansion, new equipment, etc.: Work on the new $1,500,000 wing to give sufficient office room for the tax experts, statisticians, bookkeepers and economists necessary for the operation of any big business these days was started in June and halted when it became evident that it would not be large enough.

"Ground for the new $750,000 mental hygiene plant will be broken next spring. This building is necessary for the care and rehabilitation of company officials and experts who have gone mad trying to figure out how to raise operating costs and sell goods cheaper."

Whatever else you lose, don't lose your sense of humor. No clouds ever lasted forever. Remember, "this, too, will pass."

To Extend Rural Electric Lines

NEW YORK, March 3 (INS)—The Niagara Hudson Power Corp expects to construct 800 miles of new rural electric distribution lines in New York State in 1938, bringing rural lines to 14,600 miles, or about 93 per cent of the lines required to service its territory fully in territory classified by the state as suitable for permanent agriculture.

President A. H. Schoellkopf, in announcing these extensions, reported that the company had completed 4066 miles of rural electric lines in the past three years and at the end of 1937 was serving 40,318 farms and about 142,500 non-farm customers in rural communities.

Whipping Boy For Academic Critics

Basic Steel Prices Too High, Say Complainers

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, March 3—The basic steel industry has been a whipping boy for academic critics, dilettante politicians, and the miscellaneous poisoners of public opinion.

The chief indictment against it is that as a result of monopoly the prices are absolutely and relatively too high.

Perhaps until now the industry has been negligent in making the facts available.

Irrespective of what the record shows, it is sound common sense for this industry and all others to use all its resources to eliminate economic waste and to reduce costs — especially costs in terms of man-hours per ton of steel produced.

PRESENTS DATA

Through the courtesy of Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, I am able to present some statistical comparisons related to this raging controversy concerning steel prices.

The data submitted indicate that average hourly earnings of Bethlehem employees in 1937 were 46 per cent above those prevailing in 1923, whereas the composite selling price of steel products in 1937 was actually 7 per cent below the average for 1923, despite the contention of the industry that the quality of many steel products was "immeasurably superior to the standard prevailing in 1923."

A similar study by "Iron Age," taking 1926 as the base year, discloses comparable results.

As to the assertion that steel prices have been too high, Mr. Grace has stated that, for the year 1937, which was the second largest year in the history of his company, a reduction of as little as 4 per cent in selling prices would have effaced all earnings for the stockholders, cut off whose savings the tools and equipment were purchased.

TEN-YEAR SUMMARY

Bethlehem Steel has made for its employees a ten-year summary of the wealth created and distributed by the company. It covers the period from January 1, 1926 to December 31, 1937.

$2,962,235,556 OF WEALTH CREATED AND DISTRIBUTED BY BETHLEHEM, JANUARY 1, 1926, TO DECEMBER 31, 1937

	P. C.
Received from the public for its products and services	$2,842,235,556 100.0
This was disposed of as follows:
Wages and salaries	$1,178,753,917 41.5
Materials	951,731,801 33.4
Taxes, railroad freight, depreciation and depletion	169,844,382 5.8
Interest paid less other income	88,105,885 3.1
Taxes paid	197,969,527 6.9
Paid to stockholders	184,857,126 6.5
Balance retained in the business	21,822,588 .7

It is also significant that during this ten year period, $257,869,584 of wealth was spent for additions and improvements.

Of course, the 40 per cent of total receipts paid out for wages and salaries does not tell the whole story. The expenditures for supplies and freight, and for taxes also ultimately went primarily to pay for human labor.

The company estimates that apart from selling, administrative and general expense, and taxes, that its labor cost ranges from 45 per cent to 60 per cent of the total cost.

Used Car Week Is Endorsed

DETROIT, March 3 (INS)—President Charles R. Hook of the National Association of Manufacturers today acclaimed leadership of automotive industry in combating the business recession and endorsed plans for the national used car exchange week which begins Saturday.

"The drive of the automobile industry," he said, "to thrust aside those barriers which are blocking the normal production of new cars should be of tremendous help in opening up the avenues to general business recovery."

Governor Frank Murphy in proclaiming the week urged acceptance of the sales week to Michigan residents. It said:

"Whereas a movement of this nature is certain to bring about a renewed prosperity in the state of Michigan and to thousands of its citizens, I proclaim the week of March 5 to 12 national used car exchange week in the state of Michigan and urge the cooperation of all citizens in insuring its success."

A gala parade of over 400 cars will start the sales week here at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Rail's Passenger Revenues Gain

L. R. Powell, Jr., receiver for Seaboard Railway, said passenger revenues for January, 1938, increased 5 per cent over the corresponding month in 1937. Total operating revenues for January, 1938, were $3,629,000, a decrease of $410,000, or 10 per cent, under January, 1937.

Freight revenues were $2,579,000, a decrease of $414,000, or 14 per cent. Except for January, 1937, total operating revenues for January, 1938, were higher than those for any corresponding month since 1931.

Big Sale 'Prevue'

Gilchrist's basement crowds give a hint of the business anticipated at the store's 20th anniversary sale tomorrow.

In celebration of the 20th anniversary of Gilchrist's Bargain Basement store, a birthday party sale will start in the basement tomorrow.

The Bargain Basement opened in the war days of 1918, when prices and living costs were advancing rapidly.

Similar conditions in these present times make Gilchrist's Bargain Basement continually useful to shoppers.

All store departments are contributing to the birthday party sale and the "Cash-a-Grams" system providing easy payment methods is available.

The feature was inaugurated in 1935—a privilege of enjoying low cash prices without cash by using "Cash-a-Grams."

For as little as 10 per cent down payment, one may obtain these "Cash-a-Grams" for $10 to $100 amounts and may spend them as cash in the Gilchrist Bargain Basement.

One may take as long as 20 weeks to pay and the cost of the service is small that the savings over it many times over.

Officials said today that, in these days, when the economic situation is so many ways parallels that of 1918, with prices soaring so much faster than income, Gilchrist's Bargain Basement comes forward and renews its pledges to serve and save and to bring New England up-to-the-minute clothing for every member of the family at the lowest possible prices.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1938

+ There is the man that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing. There is the man that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches.—Proverbs XIII, 7. +

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Arthur O. Phinney, Episcopal Archdeacon, Lowell. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, Rector of Trinity Church, Boston.

The Editor Says:

THE Red Army of Soviet Russia—1,500,000 strong, with a reserve force of 10,000,000 in training—is now the OFFICIAL ARMY of all Red revolutionists in the world.

The Executive Committee of the Communist International (the Comintern) in Moscow has just issued this extraordinary proclamation:

"THE HEROIC RED ARMY IS THE PRIDE NOT ONLY OF THE SOVIET PEOPLE, BUT ALSO OF THE ENTIRE INTERNATIONAL PROLETARIAT.

"IN THE SHAPE OF THE RED ARMY THE SOVIET AND INTERNATIONAL WORKING CLASS POSSESSES THE FIRST SOCIALIST ARMY IN THE WORLD, THE DEFENDER OF THE RULE OF THE WORKING PEOPLE LIBERATED FROM EXPLOITATION."

The proclamation, which, by implication, invites all American workers to desert the Stars and Stripes for the Red flag, further says that the "Red Army is the backbone of the working people of the whole world. It is the army of the workers of all lands."

If there is an armed attack on the Soviet Union "THE INTERNATIONAL WORKING CLASS WILL BE ABLE TO MOBILIZE ALL ITS FORCES," says the Comintern.

This, following the letter of Stalin to the "Pravda" of Moscow, official Communist paper, calling on the "international proletariat" to come to the aid of Soviet Russia if she is attacked, DOES NOT LEAVE A SHRED OF DOUBT ANY LONGER AS TO WHERE THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA STANDS.

THE COMMUNIST PARTY'S

—army is the Red Army, its chief is Stalin, and its country is Red Russia—for THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA IS A SECTION OF THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL.

It is a political party doing business in America whose HEADQUARTERS ARE IN RUSSIA.

And the two official American members of that Comintern are EARL BROWDER and E. Z. FOSTER, who are the official heads also of the Communist Party, doing their subversive work on our soil.

What the Comintern says is LAW for Browder, Foster, the Communist Party of America and its official organ, "The Daily Worker."

Those orders are:

SOVIET RUSSIA MUST BE FOUGHT FOR BY AMERICAN COMMUNIST WORKERS IN CASE RUSSIA IS ATTACKED.

If there is ever trouble between Soviet Russia and the United States the members of the Communist Party of America ARE SOLDIERS IN STALIN'S ARMY!

AMERICA'S ANSWER

—should be two-fold: OUTLAW THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA. No person who is a member of that party or who subscribes to the doctrines of the Comintern CAN GAIN OR RETAIN AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP OR REMAIN A TRAITOROUS RESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Stars and Stripes should spread their protecting folds only over those who are loyal to the nation which harbors and supports them.

Let all those who have other loyalties be banished from the land they would betray to the lands they would embrace.

America needs a purge.

DR. CONANT'S GOOD PLAN

"There is only one way to provide a university education for the promising youths who are now debarred by economic and geographic factors, and that is by a generous subsidy—by large scholarships or by providing opportunities for earning a sizable amount of money."—President James B. Conant of Harvard University.

Dr. Conant, whose championship of democratic education is well known, calls the nation's attention to a serious problem.

He tells us that only 11 per cent of those between the ages of 18 and 21 attend institutions of higher learning.

He rightly suggests that the absence of money compels hundreds of brilliant students to abandon study while the possession of money enables numerous inferior students to decorate colleges and universities.

His solution is the proper one. He recommends ADEQUATE scholarships for deserving boys and girls, the amount of the assistance to be determined "by the applicant's need as evidenced by the income of his family."

Nobody doubts that the scholarship system should be encouraged throughout the country. Poverty ought not to fetter the exceptional mind.

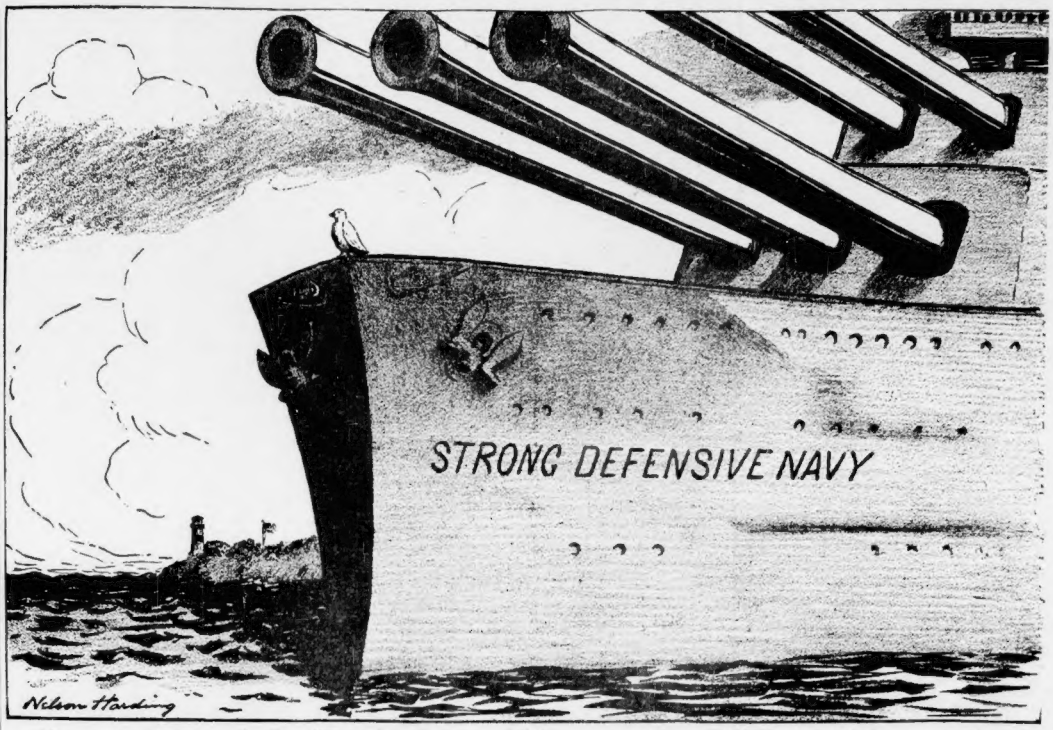
But the big question is: WHO WILL PROVIDE THE SCHOLARSHIPS?

Confiscatory taxes on incomes and estates are claiming vast fortunes that would ordinarily be left for educational purposes. Today the Tax Collector comes first. The ambitious boy or girl takes a back seat.

There is only one remedy. It is: REPEAL THE TAXES THAT ARE DISCOURAGING PRIVATE ENTERPRISE AND DESTROYING THE OPPORTUNITIES YOUTH MUST HAVE.

The Safest Perch for the Dove of Peace

By Nelson Harding



The extensive hearings on the Navy Bill before the House Naval Affairs Committee have furnished proof enough that America invites aggression and risks a humiliating foreign war unless our national defense is made ADEQUATE.

That word adequate needs to be construed in the light of world conditions.

During the twenty years since the World War it has been proved that peace cannot be maintained by means of treaties.

It has been proved that "collective security," such as the League of Nations was supposed to represent and as Soviet Russia now wants, is merely a delusion for other Powers and A TRAP FOR THE UNITED STATES.

Wars now raging or preparing prove that the world is still warlike.

The building of vast and vaster armaments by Europe and Japan, in spite of repeated disarmament conferences, proves that the Old World anticipates more wars — and we must remember that unpreparedness helped to drag us into the World War and made it unconscionably costly for us.

A mere fraction of what the World War actually cost us would pay for twice the armaments we need, on land, on sea and in the air.

A patriotic duty rests upon this Congress to provide ADEQUATELY for our national defense; and passage of the Navy Bill, by the Senate as well as by the House of Representatives, is THE FIRST AND IMMEDIATE PHASE of that solemn duty.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

WHAT will the American woman be like in 1960—20 years from now? What will she wear? How will she live? Dr. Harry E. Barnard, research director in Henry Ford's town, Dearborn, Michigan, attempts to answer these arresting queries. Listen to the man talk:

"Her saucy little 'felt' hat will be made out of peanut shells. The 'wool' in her warm winter coat will be spun out of a tough, pliable substance extracted from milk. In the form of cheese, the dairy will also supply the basic material for the buttons, fashioned to resemble mother of pearl, tortoise shell, or anything else from which buttons have been made in the past.

"Her bright-colored dress of 'worsted' or 'cambric' or 'muslin' or 'silk' will be derived from corn stalks. Her underskirt, if she wears one, and her dainty 'unmentionables' will be woven from fibres salvaged from fence-corner weeds, and the sheer, gleaming fabric of her 'silk' stockings may have once been wheat chaff.

"After she has dressed herself in garments that make a walking agricultural exhibit, she will drink a cup of coffee sweetened by sugar derived from pine trees.

"Her automobile, in which she drives to work, will be made largely of products of the soil, and she will drive it over roads made of cotton."

We will then be living in the "Plastic Age." But this writer will make a modest little wager, say two to one, that whatever innovations chemistry forces upon her the American woman of 1960 will be more attractive than ever—Nature's supreme work of art.

Mynheer Nic Blokker, president of the Dutch Bulb Growers' Association, is in New York to confer with Grover Whalen about Dutch tulips for the New York World's Fair in 1939.

Holland, as everybody knows, is a perfect paradise for these lovely flowers. And Holland has always been a little mad about tulips. For three hundred years tulips have meant almost as much to the Dutch as wheat means to the western farmer or cotton to the southern planter.

One of the most amazing bull markets the world ever knew, the craziest, except John Law's Mississippi Bubble of France, was the tulip boom and panic which took place just about the time that this country was getting its start.

Stock Exchanges in Amsterdam and Rotterdam dealt in tulip prices, not in securities. All the tricks and devices that we knew about in the American bull market of 1929 were employed in Holland's great bull market in tulips. Men grew rich, fantastically rich. Others were ruined by the mad craze for speculation in tulips.

The cost of living went up in leaps and bounds, and then, as always occurs when speculation goes wild, the tide began to turn. A few of the long-sighted turned their tulip investments into cash and sent it abroad. And then came the crash, when rich merchants were reduced to beggary, noble houses impoverished and ruin cast over the whole land.

It was many years before Holland recovered from the great tulip craze and the panic which followed. All of which proves that when people want to speculate, when they want to gamble, they will find a medium, even if it be only a flower.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

(One of a series of articles prepared by O. O. McIntyre before his sudden death.)

THEY are going to try to make fiction readers conscious of a neglected, almost forgotten writer. He is red-haired Harris Merton Lyon, who passed away some 20 years ago. While his output was slim, several capable critics regard him as another O. Henry.

Lyon, an alumnus of the Kansas City Star, was in his 30's when stricken. He was a contributor to Hampton's when I was on the staff, and I lunched with him, when in pocket, at Keene's chop house in the West 30's, the Algonquin gathering place of the period.

Although he had a number of short stories and a few books published, he felt keenly an indifference to his work. And the last I saw of him he was rattling around somewhat hopelessly fashioning plugs for a pipe tobacco in one of the advertising agencies.

Carl Crow, the expert on China, is an old friend and admirer of Lyon and is taking part in the proposed rejuvenation of his works. Theodore Dreiser was among the many to encourage Lyon's fledgling flights. So were Bob Davis and the late Ray Long.

Most collegiates ever from Princeton, down from New Haven or where-not meet their girl friends under the whopping clock in the Biltmore lobby. This has been a trysting place since the hotel was built. And the tryst was encouraged by the late John McE. Bowman, who thought no hotel could be prosperous without youth, although, strictly speaking, it's the least profitable trade.

The Biltmore tea rooms also continue to feature hundreds of canaries, whose late afternoon obligato is so enchanting and often so pronounced it dims the orchestra.

Oddly, notable stars wince at travesties by mimics. They will laugh at the impersonations of others but freeze up when burlesqued. More than any other class, they can't take it. Some years ago I saw Tallulah Bankhead at a private gathering—and first graciously asking permission—give a deliciously sly take-off on the art of Ethel Barrymore as that haughty lady watched from the side lines. The crowd roared, but Miss Barrymore gave a toss of her head that showed unmistakable pique.

Sheila Barrett often has to change her night club routine because of unintentional offense in delineations. So has Mitzi Green.

Thingumbobs: Henry Ford likes to play parcheesi for relaxation...Mary Livingstone still trembles like a leaf before the microphone...Clay Morgan, N. B. C. publicity chief, once a repertoire actor, is still stage struck...Mrs. Vincent Astor never misses a Donald Duck...Frank Case knows more about the niceties of English than many of his famous writing guests...Dorothy Thompson no longer smiles when introduced, as she so often is, as the wife of Upton Sinclair.

Vesperal vagary: Around dusk there is rare sentimental adventure standing opposite the Metropolitan Museum of Art on 5th avenue at 80th street. It can only be enjoyed when traffic stops. Two small ledges run the entire length of the building between columns. These ledges are packed with birds, thousands, maybe a million. All talking. Further along toward the north, windows are lighted.

Every pane is silhouetted with birds in sashes, looking as if the glass were set in birds and Walt Disney the glazier!

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

"HALT!"—and two bayonets, in the hands of soldiers, were lowered toward my breast.

It was at Chapultepec Castle ("Grasshopper Hill"), dominating the City of Mexico. I had gone up the beautiful, rose-cluttered paths to the castle, where the president-dictator of Mexico resided, and intended, in my youthful gullibility, to take a stroll through the castle.

This little adventure of some years ago came back to me the other day when I read that President Cardenas had turned this historic castle into a museum for the people.

General Gideon Pillow, commanding the American forces, in 1847 stormed the castle. It was defended heroically by a band of Mexican cadets. All but four were killed. The last one to die threw himself from the Rock of Chapultepec wrapped in the Mexican flag.

There is a monument at the base of the castle dedicated to those heroic youths who died defending the city against "the North American invaders."

After I had been repulsed by the bayonets, I went down the rose-laden path again, saluted the monument with a sincere "Viva Mejico!" and went into the casino, where I drank the best bottled beer (made in Toluca) that ever irrigated my gullet.

While England, with shining eyes of brotherly affection, is negotiating an Anglo-American trade treaty she is moving for final passage in Parliament of a bill that will continue the present drastic restrictions on British imports of American-made motion pictures.

The present agreement, made in 1927, expires on March 31. The new bill eliminates our pictures from the list of articles for the trade pact parley.

When the parley is over we shall probably find that England has collected from us the money France owes her.
